TACOMA-TOKYO

Pilot Hurt When Pacific Airplane Goes Into Ditch

Plans for Refueling Flight to Tokyo Upset When Robert Wark and Eddie Brown Meet With Accident in Landing at Ladner, B.C.; Flight Started From Tacoma.

Canadian Press
Ladner, B.C., Aug. 11.—Robert Wark's and Eddie Brown's plans for a Tacoma-Tokyo plane flight have been abandoned for this year at least, as officials here state. Their plane was damaged in landing here to-day.

Vancouver, Aug. 11.—The Wark-Brown airplane which landed at the temporary airport on Lulu Island yesterday from Tacoma, Wash., en route to White Horse, Y.T., on a proposed flight, Tokyo to Japan, was damaged shortly before noon to-day when attempting a landing at Ladner, B.C. The ship had flown from Lulu Island to Ladner, where a longer runway was available. The plane, in landing, overran the runway and went into a ditch, smashing the landing gear and damaging the propeller. Wark was slightly hurt, suffering an injury to one knee.

PLANS CHANGED
When the fliers left Tacoma yesterday at 11:33 a.m. they expected to make Tokyo on a four hop flight, with the first stop at White Horse, Yukon, 1,200 miles north. At 3:30 p.m., however, the plane landed at the Lulu Island field.

The machine is named the Pacific Era. From Whitehorse, the pilots planned to fly their big red plane to Tokyo via Fairbanks and Nome, Alaska, and Petropavlovsk, Siberia. From Whitehorse to Fairbanks is about 400 miles, Nome is 500 miles farther on and the distance from Nome to Petropavlovsk is about 1,400 miles. Wark said they planned only brief stops for refueling and rest. The fliers expected to cover the entire distance in five or six days.

Wark, leader of the expedition, carried a gold watch as a gift of the citizens of Tacoma to the Emperor of Japan.

Lieut. Harold Bromley, who originally planned a Tacoma-to-Tokyo flight, had planned to carry the gift. Bromley, however, forgot to take it with him when he changed his plans and went by steamer to Tokyo, where he is preparing to fly to Tacoma.

Wark said he hoped to give the watch to Bromley in Tokyo for presentation to the Emperor.

GENERATOR GAVE TROUBLE
The start of the Pacific Era from Tacoma yesterday was delayed more than an hour by radio generator trouble which developed while the plane was being warmed up.

The take-off for Tokyo was the first successful one of six attempts by the Pacific Era to engage in flights. The craft is a five-year-old Pottier biplane built in Holland at about the same time the famed Southern Cross, globe-circling plane, was constructed.

NEW GENERAL TARIFF PLAN IN BRITAIN

Rebates For Dominions Suggested; Discussion as Yet Purely Informal

London, Aug. 11.—The London Daily Herald, government organ, to-day said that individual ministers, in making plans for the forthcoming Imperial Conference, were considering the idea of a general tariff of ten per cent for revenue purposes, with a rebate for the Dominions.

The project was said by the paper to have been submitted in a memorandum by H. D. Henderson, head of the government's economic advisory staff, and to have reached the stage of discussion only as yet, the matter not having been broached in the cabinet.

BIG WHALE PAYS VISIT TO SEATTLE WATERFRONT

Seattle, Aug. 11.—A big whale appeared in Seattle harbor yesterday scarcely 200 yards off shore and remained visible, spectators said, for nearly fifteen minutes.

At the approach of an outboard Bremerton ferry boat the great marine mammal disappeared beneath the surface of the water with a resounding splash of its tail which was audible for several blocks.

It was believed the whale strayed into the Sound through the Strait of Juan de Fuca after becoming lost from a herd somewhere out in the Pacific.

HARRINGTON NEW PREMIER NOVA SCOTIA

Hon. E. N. Rhodes Resigns on Becoming Federal Minister of Fisheries

Hon. John Doull Becomes Secretary-treasurer of Nova Scotia

Canadian Press
Halifax, N.S., Aug. 11.—Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Premier of Nova Scotia since 1925, to-day tendered his resignation to Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Tully to accept appointment as Minister of Fisheries in the Dominion Government. Hon. Gordon S. Harrington, Minister of Public Works and Mines in Nova Scotia Government, was asked to form a government and accepted.

Mr. Harrington will retain his portfolio. The portfolio of the Provincial Secretary-Treasurer, held by Premier Rhodes, will be taken by Hon. John Doull, Pictou County representative, who was formerly Minister without portfolio.

BORN IN HALIFAX
Col. Harrington, who was Deputy Minister of Overseas Military Forces of Canada in the last year of the Great War and the post-war period, has been a member of the Legislature since the general election in June, 1925. He was born August 7, 1883, in Halifax.

CHURCH LEADER MAKES PROTEST IN NEW CABINET

Col. the Rev. R. H. Steacy, Toronto, Says No Anglicans Among Bennett Ministers

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—"It is a matter of deep regret that Hon. R. B. Bennett, in forming his Federal cabinet, has totally ignored the mighty contribution, in thought, religion and culture, persistently made to the national life of Canada by the Church of England," declared Col. the Rev. R. H. Steacy, C.M.G., in a sermon yesterday in All Saints' Anglican church here. Col. Steacy was director of chaplain services of the Canadian army during the Great War.

"Certainly the Roman Catholic Church, the Presbyterian and the United Church should as far as possible be proportionately represented, but a Federal Cabinet portfolio without a single representation of the Church of England's culture and thought is simply not a normal Conservative cabinet, and, unless remedied, cannot be endorsed," said the preacher.

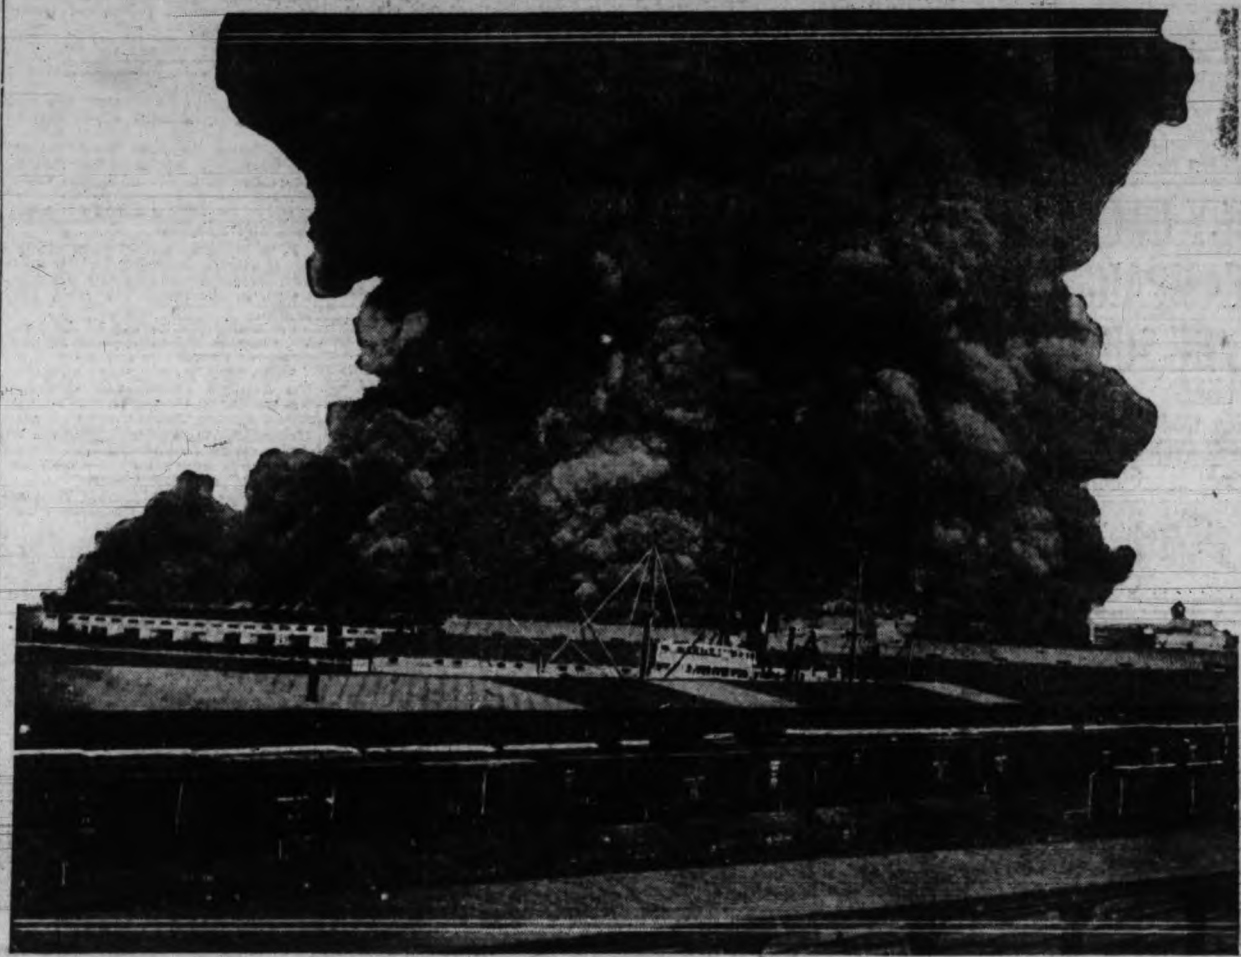

INTEREST IN GOVERNMENT
"It is in proper that you as members of the church should take a deep interest in the government of that part of the Empire in which you live. Politics is the science of government. We all make our contribution to that science. Now it happens that the majority of the Church of England electors are supporters of the Conservative Party by birth, by education and by natural culture. Public opinion is the average of the sum total of the contributions, mental, moral, spiritual and religious, from the many schools of thought and religious societies. A Federal cabinet should contain a proper legitimate schools of thought, ethics, culture and spiritual aspirations.

He reported the situation serious, and hoped that the committee, to be formed, representing coal operators, railways and labor, would be productive of benefit.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 11.—An incendiary may have set the blaze which swept the big new Canadian National Railways steamship pier here yesterday afternoon, causing the death of a man through excitement and a property loss of $1,250,000.

This is the theory on which police and fire department officials are working to-day, following verification of a report that two men were seen running from the south end of the wharf a few minutes before the outbreak was discovered.

The men were seen by Canadian National waterfront officials. They were seen accidentally dropped a lighted match and that both men fled when they saw the flames arise.

The fire is described as the second worst in the history of Vancouver.

SOON TO HAVE BEEN HANDED OVER
Vancouver, Aug. 11.—The fire which yesterday afternoon destroyed the new Canadian National Railways pier at the foot of Main Street here and caused the death of one man through excitement came only two days before it was to be turned over by the contractors to the government. The property loss is estimated at $1,250,000.

One of the most spectacular conflagrations in the history of the waterfront, the fire broke out a few minutes before 4 o'clock and in less than half an hour the entire dock was a mass of smoldering ruins.

Originating in the northeast corner of the dock, at the extreme end, presumably beneath the floor, the fire swept with great rapidity the entire length of the structure, only the new ramp at the entrance escaping the flames. A watchman at the end of the pier was the first to notice the smoke, flames breaking out as he ran south giving the alarm. So swiftly did the fire envelope the structure the watchman was barely able to keep ahead of the flames as he ran.

FIREMEN QUICKLY ON SCENE
Within a space of three minutes from the time of the outbreak firemen were on the scene. They were met by dense volumes of smoke and flames, the fire having already reached the south end of the structure.

Three big oil tanks, standing at the west of the dock, were immediately drenched with water, no less than ten lines of hose being directed at the task of preventing the tanks from catching fire, with a possible explosion. A tank car on the railway tracks which was full of fuel oil was also sprayed with water and kept under observation while the main conflagration was being fought.

NO SHIPS AT PIER
There were no steamers moored at the pier at the time of the outbreak, but added loss was sustained by the Northern Construction Company when (Concluded on Page 17)

FAST RAIL PLANE AMAZES ENGINEERS

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London, Aug. 11.—Nearly 200 delegates attending the annual congress of the Institute of Transport at Glasgow under the presidency of Sir Josiah Stamp, chairman of the London Midland and Scottish Railway, had their first experience of traveling in a rail plane during an official visit to the new Binnie installation at Milngavie. The smooth, silent running of the plane, which is capable of attaining a speed of over 150 miles an hour, and is adaptable for either goods or passenger traffic, caused general surprise, and much interest was shown by the delegates in the details of its construction. The luxurious interior of the plane, which is a cocktail bar, armchairs, tables, etc., are comfortably accommodated, and also the object of much favorable comment.

Major-General Long, director of transport for Lever Brothers in an interview, said that, as was the case with George Stephenson, Mr. Binnie would find many who would be sceptical about his system. It was, however, a method of transport which he believed would prove, particularly valuable for colonial development and expansion.

R. R. Peotini, superintendent of the London General Omnibus Company, said he was much impressed by the efficient working of the system. He greatly admired the aesthetic appearance of the structure. The railplane had a big future in front of it, J. McDonnell, assistant-general manager of the Birmingham Corporation Tramways, said. It was a step in the right direction towards the development of safe and speedy transport, and would assist in relieving the congested roads.

Synthetic Fuel From Air To Take Place of Coal

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London, Aug. 11.—The presidential address, delivered at the annual conference of the Society of Chemical Industry at Birmingham by Dr. Herbert Levinstein, has attracted widespread attention.

The prediction that the air, from which our supplies of nitrogen are now synthetically obtained, would also supply synthetic fuel in place of coal, was one of his most striking pronouncements, while he also hinted at the possibility that the world's raw materials and power would ultimately be drawn from air, water, soil, and sun.

Another ten or fifteen generations, he declared, would see the exhaustion of the world's principal coal deposits. The use of coal would, therefore, last for a less period than the Moorish occupation of Spain, which, at the time, seemed so important to Christendom.

Dr. Levinstein went on to quote figures to show how water power is replacing coal power and how the substitution of the growing plant—timber—for coal and oil, is impossible, since the world could not spare enough acres of actual or possible forest lands. Dr. Levinstein expressed the belief that the losses of the war could be made good by learning to use more effectively the natural forces for industrial work. He pointed out that at the present rate of progress, the world will double its population of two thousand millions in the next seventy years, and that there is great danger of acute problems arising between the nations that have enough food and timber and those that have not.

"Here," said Dr. Levinstein, "is a problem for the League of Nations, for by its solution depends peace or war in a generation or two."

Lord Melchett is accepting the invitation to serve as President of the Society of Chemical Industry for the coming year, will not only be following in the illustrious footsteps of such men as the Earl of Balfour, but he will be carrying on the traditions of his father, who was one of the society's founders. Its headquarters are in London, and by functioning as a general clearing-house of information of applied chemistry, it has probably done more than any other learned body to advance the scientific prestige of the city in all parts of the world. It is only right, therefore, that it should have been decided to reserve for London the honor of being the centre of the Jubilee celebrations next year.

The first bomb struck near Calgary, a few miles north of here. Then the machine dived toward Providence and released its bombs. Columns of smoke and dust rose from a field.

The plane circled the town and came back, dropping lower as it came. A bomb fell near the entrance to the Ruckman mine, but failed to explode. Five more were dropped near the Meador, Holt and Young mine, but only two exploded. The explosions of the bombs could be heard for miles and threw the town into an uproar. The machine appeared about the time the miners were going to work.

The bombs, which failed to explode, were made of dynamite wrapped in adhesive tape, with fuses attached. The aerial attack followed several explosions of dynamite near the Meador Mine Company's plant, and that of the Meador, Holt and Young Company.

TROOPS NEEDED

County officials wired officials at Harrisburg, Ill., and other southern Illinois towns to be on the lookout for the plane. It also was indicated that another appeal would be made to Governor Sampson for troops. The governor has refused to send them, stating he believed, detectives could do more to break up violence than could troops.

The mines in this section were closed April 1 because of disagreements over wages and working conditions. While a vote was announced as overwhelmingly in favor of a strike, it was never authorized by the United Mine Workers of America. In recent weeks most of the mines were reopened and it was announced they were producing almost normal rates of production.

Dynamitings and ninety-eight men have been enjoined in federal court against interference with the mines.

EXPLOSION KILLS MAN AND HIS THREE CHILDREN

Burnaby Police Say O. Zelmer Placed Dynamite Which Ends Own and Others' Lives

Canadian Press

Burnaby, B.C., Aug. 11.—Otto Zelmer and his three children were blown to atoms at 8:30 p.m. by a charge of dynamite allegedly touched off by Zelmer, according to a Burnaby police report.

The tragedy took place in a stump hole on the proposed new provincial highway just off Douglas Road near the Great Northern Railway tracks.

Those killed were: Otto Zelmer, 39, bridge settler; Burnaby; Freda Zelmer, nine; Irene Zelmer, five, and an infant about two years of age.

Police allege Zelmer placed his three children in a stump hole and then climbed in after them, putting a charge of dynamite at the bottom.

NEIGHBORS HEARD BLAST

A loud blast was heard and neighbors rushed to the scene. Police were immediately called and they succeeded in recovering portions of the bodies, which were removed to the Patterson funeral parlors in New Westminster.

Constable E. Homewood of the Vancouver force received a report Sunday from Vincent Macher, 1176 Richards Street, that a man named Zelmer was contemplating suicide.

According to Macher, the man had stayed with him Saturday night. He said Zelmer had been having trouble with his wife, and that she had left him a few days ago.

BUY IN CANADA CAMPAIGN MAY BE SUPPORTED

Plea to Prime Minister Bennett Will Be Given Victoria Support

R. J. Cromie's Suggestions Before Victoria Chamber of Commerce

A "Buy Canadian Goods" national advertising campaign, undertaken forthwith by the Federal Government, would be the finest thing possible for reviving Canadian industry, R. J. Cromie, publisher of The Vancouver Sun, suggested in a letter to the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, read at today's meeting of the directors.

Mr. Cromie urged the chamber to forthwith telegraph Hon. R. B. Bennett in support of such an advertising campaign, stressing the value of prompt action.

Approval of the principle involved was generally voiced and President P. B. Power was requested to co-operate with other boards of trade in any joint representations which may be made to the Prime Minister.

It was commented that advance of the public demand for Canadian-made goods was a matter of wide personal application, much beyond the limitations of an advertising programme.

Macher asserted Zelmer had been acting strangely for some time. Sunday morning, he said, he left his residence with the announced intention of proceeding to his Burnaby home. Zelmer said before the left, according to Macher, that he intended to spend the day with his children before turning them over to his wife.

A friend had stayed with them all night. When Zelmer arrived home, it was said, the friend left, leaving Zelmer alone with the children.

It is reported the children told a neighbor their father intended to kill them.

Work on Site of Structure Burned Yesterday Will Be Started at Once

Steamers of Company to Use Ballantyne Pier While Work Proceeds

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 11.—The Canadian National Steamship Pier will be rebuilt as soon as possible, Colonel T. A. Hiam, representative here of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R., declared today.

Work preliminary to reconstruction following the fire yesterday could be started by the Northern Construction Company on Wednesday," according to Alexander McLean, purchasing agent for the contractors.

This estimate, he stated, was dependent on the ability of the fire insurance adjusters to complete their work before that time.

"It might have been worse," was the attitude of prominent C.N.R. executives.

Col. Hiam visualized the plight of the company if one of its new coastal liners had been tied up at the dock, without steam up and powerless to move, as the hungry flames advanced.

B. T. Chappell, general superintendent in British Columbia for the railway, remarked the company was fortunate in not losing the ramp approach.

For saving that portion of the pier, Mr. Chappell had great praise for the ability of Vancouver's fire fighters.

When Sunday's fire voided all plans, the Northern Construction Company was rushing on the pier in time for the formal opening Tuesday, when the new steamer Prince David was scheduled to depart on her first tri-city trip.

Ten days' work remained to be done before the pier was complete.

Insurance on a progressive basis, as work was carried to completion, was carried by the contractors.

BALLANTYNE PIER USED

Vancouver, Aug. 11.—The Ballantyne Pier will be used temporarily as a terminal for the Canadian National Steamships in place of the structure burned Sunday afternoon; it was declared by steamship officials today.

Fire will not be allowed to interfere with service plans.

The liner Prince David, which was scheduled to inaugurate a Victoria-Seattle-Vancouver service at 2 p.m. Tuesday, will sail on "Sedule."

The S. Prince Rupert arrived today from Alaska and berthed at the Ballantyne Pier. She will sail northwest tonight.

Use of the Ballantyne Pier was still in progress. The Vancouver Harbor Commission wired B. C. Keely, steamship manager at Victoria, offering him the use of its terminal.

Mr. Keely and numerous company officers and guests were passengers aboard the Prince David when the fire raged. The ship was on a tour of the Sound and Gulf of Georgia.

The Prince David arrived back here at 7 o'clock this morning, and she berthed at the Ballantyne Pier.

EXPLOSION KILLS MAN AND HIS THREE CHILDREN

Burnaby Police Say O. Zelmer Placed Dynamite Which Ends Own and Others' Lives

Canadian Press

Burnaby, B.C., Aug. 11.—Otto Zelmer and his three children were blown to atoms at 8:30 p.m. by a charge of dynamite allegedly touched off by Zelmer, according to a Burnaby police report.

The tragedy took place in a stump hole on the proposed new provincial highway just off Douglas Road near the Great Northern Railway tracks.

Those killed were: Otto Zelmer, 39, bridge settler; Burnaby; Freda Zelmer, nine; Irene Zelmer, five, and an infant about two years of age.

Police allege Zelmer placed his three children in a stump hole and then climbed in after them, putting a charge of dynamite at the bottom.

COTTAGE BLAZE IN TENNESSEE KILLS FIVE

Two Seriously Injured in Amusement Park Outbreak; Fireworks Suspected

Johnson City, Tenn., Aug. 11.—Five persons were burned to death and two others suffered serious injuries in a fire that destroyed a six-room cottage located in an amusement park near here early to-day.

Those killed were Mrs. Hugh Lee Witt, twenty-five, her two children, Hugh Lee Witt Jr., two, and Marie Lee Witt, three; Mrs. Witt's sister, Charles Witt, her brother-in-law, and Paul Reeder, twenty-five, an employee at the park.

Charles Witt had concessions at the park, known as Cox's Lake, and Hugh Lee Witt had charge of fireworks displays. Officers investigated to determine whether fireworks had been stored in the cottage.

The fire occurred about daybreak and the victims were burned in their beds.

YOUNG ROBBERS IN PORT HANEY

Port Haney, B.C., Aug. 11.—Three young robbers stole about $100 worth of goods from the general store of Puller & Watson Limited here at 4:30 o'clock this morning. They were disturbed during the robbery and were seen leaving the building. Mr. and Mrs. F. Davis, who live in the upper story.

The youths used an automobile, which was later discovered to have been stolen in Vancouver.

DECREASE IN WORKING HOURS IN PROVINCE

serious shortage of water in storage areas.

EFFECTS SEEN

Beneficial effects to legislation under the Hours of Work Act, the report goes on to state, can be seen chiefly in the different branches of the lumber industry, where the average working hours, calculated from the returns received, show a reduction of some 15 per cent.

Industries which show an average decline of six hours and over in the working week are building, sawmilling, coal shipping and pulp and paper manufacture, followed by contracting, explosives and chemical, miscellaneous trade and industries, smelting, and the manufacture of wood, with a reduction of over three hours per week; breweries, food products and street railways, etc., with a decline of over two hours in the average working week.

It is known that some industries work more than forty-eight hours per week, and it may be questioned why, with an eight-hour law, this is possible.

Take, for example, the lumber industry, says the report. The regulations promulgated by the Board of Adjustment, and the enforcement of the law, permit all operations carried on east of the Cascade Mountains to operate on a nine-hour basis, which is fifty-four hours per week. It is pointed out that this regulation is inapplicable to all operations being an industry which does not come within the scope of the act, the board has no jurisdiction.

It is also the food products group, where only a very small number of the employees engaged come within the limits of the act.

As a further proof that this Province has accepted the general principle of an eight-hour day, it may be stated that from a total of 116,623 employees reported on by the 5,065 firms making returns, 101,626, or 87.18 per cent, worked on an average of 40.28, or 9.40 per cent, worked over eight but not more than nine hours per day; whereas only 4,030, or 3.45 per cent of all employees, were working in excess of nine hours per day.

The average weekly working hours covered by all occupations in the report was 48.25 in 1929 compared with 48.43 in 1928; 48.35 in 1927 and 48.94 in 1926.

LABOR DISPUTES

It is particularly pleasing to report that industrial activities in the Province have been free of any serious upheaval during the last year, the relationship between employer and employee being such that only in a very few instances strikes formed the basis of settling the points in dispute.

The number of days lost through the enforcement of conditions by a strike or lockout is the smallest on record; 492 employees being affected for a total of 3,320 working days. These figures will be a source of gratification to those who realize that a strike means a distinct loss to both employer and employee, and is further evidence that those responsible for the formulating of wage agreements are actuated with a desire to meet and canvass the whole situation, and to arrive at a basis which is apparently satisfactory to all concerned.

On October 13 the Lieutenant-Governor in council accepted the resignations of Harry Wood and Edward Beers Perry as members of the Board of Adjustment, and appointed Adam Bell and Robert Morrison, who, with J. O. McEwen, Deputy Minister, as chairman, now constitute the board.

steamships, and Commander A. S. M. Nichols, marine superintendent, and Bruce Borchman, C.N.R. publicity representative at Vancouver; John McRae, general freight agent, and R. McDonald, assistant general baggage agent, were also on board.

HERE ON SUNDAY

After taking her passengers back to Seattle Saturday night the Prince David died back to Victoria on Sunday, arriving here at 9 o'clock last evening and remaining alongside her berth in the Inner Harbor until midnight, when she cleared for Vancouver. The vessel lay here, those officials on board who had left their cars on the Vancouver dock to await their return, knew that it was a matter for the insurance adjusters.

AIRSHIP MAST MAY BE BUILT AT MONCTON

Plan Is Studied as Aid to Proposed Britain-Montreal Dirigible Service

Airships Would Avoid St. Lawrence River Weather; Planes to Carry Mail

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Possibility of further developments in connection with aerial communication between the United Kingdom and Canada which may necessitate the erection of another dirigible mooring mast in this country, probably at Moncton, N.B., is seen as a result of conferences held over the week-end between officers of the dirigible R-100 and Federal Government officials connected with air transportation. St. Hubert is regarded as the best equipped airbase on the North American continent, but an auxiliary base nearer the Atlantic coast is favored as a means of further speeding up aerial activities in this regard. The city of Moncton, occupying a strategic position as a distributing centre, is looked upon as the most favorable site.

VIEWS DIFFER

Sir Dennistoun Burney, designer of the R-100, declared that in order to guarantee some regularity in Transatlantic flights it would be necessary to establish an emergency base some hundred miles south of Moncton, in order to avoid fogs and other meteorological conditions.

Such a proposal, however, is said to have been viewed unfavorably by Commander H. B. Bolton, and Commander J. S. Booth, the captain and navigating officer, respectively. The point suggested by Sir Dennistoun Burney would make such a base in the United States, and would thus destroy the idea of an Empire route. The officers of the R-100, while agreeing such an emergency base would be necessary, are inclined to the opinion that a suitable location could be found in Canada, nearer to the Atlantic Coast than Moncton.

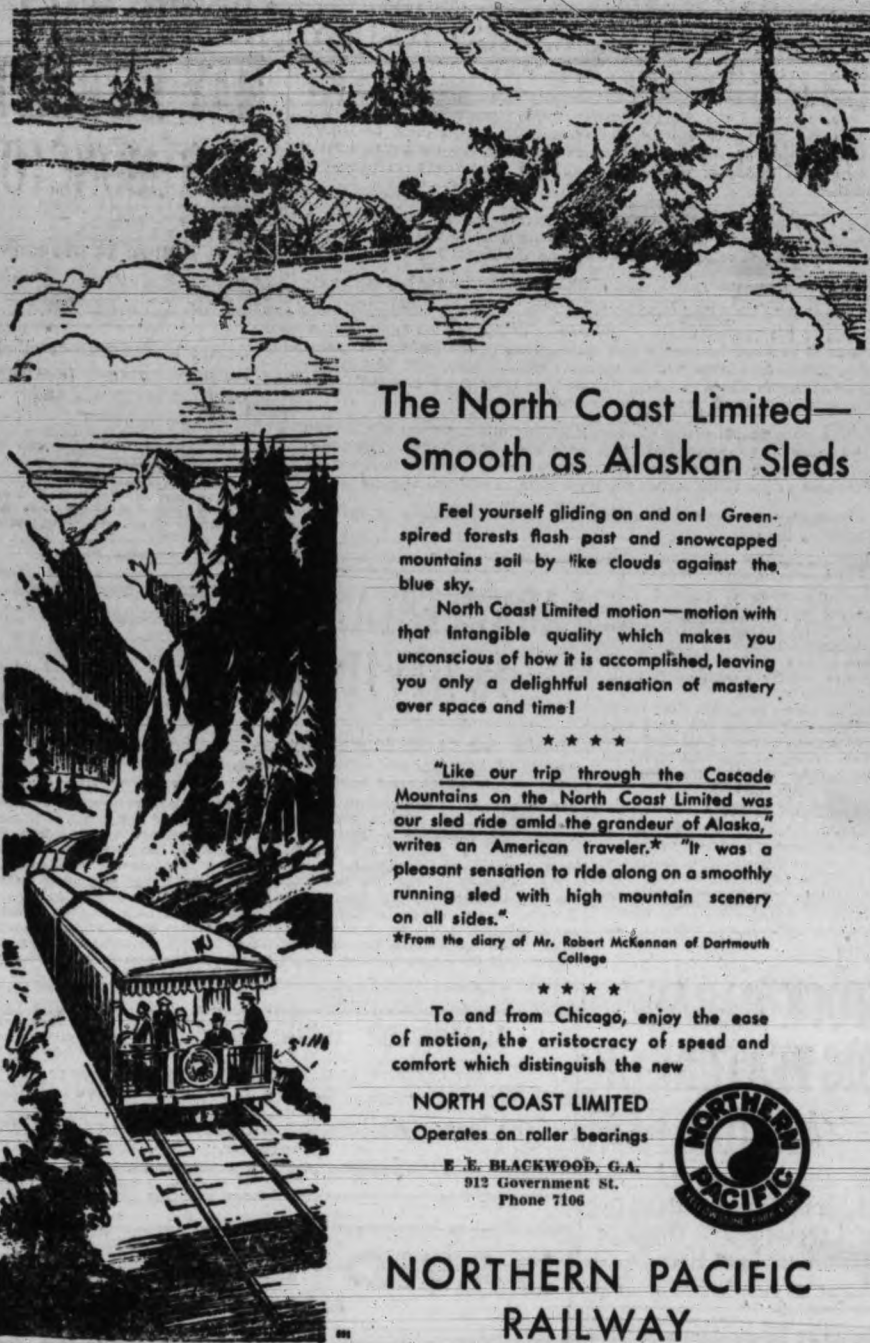

TO AVOID ST. LAWRENCE

The treacherous and uncharted waters of the lower St. Lawrence Valley which gave R-100 a trying time on her trip to Montreal, could be avoided, it is pointed out, if the airship should make due south from Belle Isle to an inland point such as Moncton. From there the mails could be transferred to the existing airmail services and the ships could then proceed to Montreal with their passengers. By plane the journey from Moncton to Montreal occupies little over three hours, a speed which the airships could not approach.

LIGHT MAST

A mooring mast at Moncton need not possess the elaborate equipment of the one at St. Huberts since its functions would be limited to that of providing a starting point for the vessel in order that the mails might be transhipped.

DISCOVERY OF BODIES REVEALS FARM MURDERS

Stow, Mass., Aug. 11.—The bodies of William Stefanovic, Stow farmer, and his wife, missing since May, were discovered in a shallow grave in a wood lot near the farm by four youths late yesterday. Detective Edward P. O'Neill said it was a double murder. The youths were attracted to the spot by the barking of a hunting dog. The heel of a woman's shoe and a man's elbow were visible above the ground.

The disappearance of the couple first attracted attention from state and county authorities this week. Joe Stefanovic, a farm hand employed by Stefanovic, had told neighbors the couple had gone to Chicago. Meanwhile he took charge of the farm. He disappeared a few days ago. Police said he took with him $800 cash in ruins and the proceeds from auctioned cattle.

Discovery of the bodies recalled the disappearance of a previous owner of the farm, "Tiger" Hale, seventy years ago. He was believed to have been killed, robbed of $4,000 and the body tossed into quicksand.

BLAKER PARTY PUSHES AHEAD

London Party Crosses Rockies
By Pack Train on Way to Pacific Coast

Banff, Alta., Aug. 11.—Somewhere in the heart of the Purcell range of the Selkirk the Sir Reginald Blaker party is making its way slowly but surely westward. The party, consisting of Sir Reginald Blaker of London, England; S. C. T. Littlewood of Surrey, England; and J. Wilson Perry of Salop, England, left the Banff Springs Hotel on July 25 on a never-before-attempted continuous pack-train trip through all the mountain ranges between here and the Pacific Coast. Their outfit consisted of eleven pack-horses, guide and two attendants. To-day word was received by Pat Brewster of Banff, who outfitted them for the trail, that they had successfully crossed the Rockies by way of the Spray River, Palliser Pass and Kootenay and then crossed the Briscoe range by Taggart's Pass. After crossing the Columbia, they started the climb up Earl Grey Pass, through the Purcell range. On the western slope they will drop down to Sugar Lake and then will ferry across several bodies of water before they reach Jumbo Creek, by which they will ascend Hope Pass. That, on the other side, will lead them to Hope on the Fraser River.

The crossing of Hope Pass will be their greatest difficulty, for this trail has not been used by pack-trains for approximately twenty years, and it is expected that innumerable giant Douglas firs will be lying across and blocking the trail. Passage will have to be chopped through all such barricades. It is expected the party will reach Hope about the first week of September.

NEW NITRATE PACT MADE FOR WORLD TRADE

Berlin, Aug. 11.—Negotiations of European and Chilean nitrate producers, begun in Oxford in June, continued at Paris, came to a successful conclusion yesterday with an agreement binding virtually all countries in the world excepting the United States.

The countries represented at the conference included Great Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Norway, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Ireland and Chile.

The trade compact, which sets up world-wide control of production and prices of nitrate other than in the United States and its dependencies, where the Sherman Anti-trust law operates against monopolies, will take effect as soon as formalities have been settled, after which the syndicate will issue a statement setting forth its scope and plans.

The combine, it is said, leaves the United States in control of about fifty per cent of nitrate production through the recently formed Chilean nitrate company.

IDLE TOTAL GROWS IN BRITAIN; BEER TRADE PROSPEROUS

Railway Shares Slump Badly;
Tin and Rubber Industries
Face Crisis

London, Aug. 11.—Practically the only prosperous industry in Great Britain to-day is the brewing of beer. This industry benefits from the holiday season.

There is usually a spurt in the coal trade before the August holidays, but this year it has failed to materialize. Iron, coal and steel are very dull. The textile trades remain depressed and the drapery retail trade is not up to expectations.

An economic mission is being sent by the government to the Far East; and will be mainly concerned with the cotton trade in China.

Unemployed figures are 1,972,700 being an increase of 32,800 in the week. A parliamentary committee of all parties has been appointed to report on the State Unemployment Insurance Fund, which is now heavily in debt.

The general feeling among business men is that things will be better in the autumn, but reformists do not expect any improvement in trade beyond the normal revival in activity that follows the holiday season.

Outside of this country British tin and rubber industries are facing an acute crisis, and compulsory restriction is being suggested.

The opinion is hazarded that Great Britain itself will have a political change before an economic crisis.

In the railway markets the feature was the slump in some railway stocks, excepting undergrounds, on the reduction of interim dividends and the decline in traffic.

London, Midland and Scottish ordinary stock never before has been so low as the present price. Its industrial equity shares were adversely affected by the fall in the so-called international on a New York selling.

The only bright feature was the brewery market. Watney Combe again increasing its distribution.

Cables and Wireless Limited, was sold on the publication of figures showing 9.7 per cent decline in the traffic of the first half year.

Liquidation in Imperial Chemical on fear that part of the disclosed profits last year was in reality capital profits on the revaluation of investments undoubtedly made holders of industrial shares nervous. Imperial Chemical touched a new low record. Rayon and textile shares were dull and store shares were spasmodically sold.

One of the firmest markets was in South African gold shares on recognition of the improved position of mining companies' labor and costs.

MOSCOW PAPER DISCUSSES TRADE

Moscow, Aug. 11.—The newspaper Pravda yesterday editorially declared Soviet Russia's present trade relations with the United States could continue only if real guarantees were given that "surprises" in their business relations would be avoided in the future.

The paper questioned the possibility of normal commercial relations between the two countries in the atmosphere of uncertainty and "vagueness" created by anti-Soviet campaigns.

"Successful trade is impossible in hostile surroundings where the elementary rules of international relations are violated," it said.

The recent placing of an embargo on Soviet timber, it said, by the United States was characterized as a link in a chain of anti-Soviet intrigues, encouraged by small groups of "capitalists" who hated for the Soviet country is so great they even ignore their own economic interests.

The Summer Flower Show and After

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

It has been the habit of the writer for several years to comment on the summer flower show of the Victoria Horticultural Society. As usual, one learns many things this year. The two outstanding thoughts that remain with one after seeing the show are, first, the fact that some sort of show are for the purpose of this kind of exhibition is a crying need of Victoria. This is not said in a spirit of complaint. Far from it. The Shriners have a beautiful and useful building thoroughly up-to-date; and the society was very lucky indeed in being able to use it, but it is far too small for such an exhibition. On Saturday evening, the weather being hot, the atmosphere was next to unbearable, and the exhibits were so crowded that they did not show to their best.

The other outstanding thought is the great work that Mr. R. N. Palmer and his good wife are doing to put British Columbia on Canada's flower map. Their new seedling gladioli are marvels of beauty and are the equal if not the superior to any seedlings that have been raised upon this continent. They are bound to make a name for themselves and for British Columbia. It is to be hoped that they will be shown at many shows in Canada and the United States so that they may become better known.

McTavish Brothers also had a wonderful display of the popular flower, and they too are helping in no small degree to advertise the possibilities of British Columbia as a flower-growing province.

The sweet peas exhibited by Mr. and Mrs. Hibbert were perhaps the best that they have ever shown, and this is saying a great deal.

AN AID TO BUSINESS

The Victoria Horticultural Society is one of the city's best assets. It is one of the most valuable stimulants of business in the horticultural line we have. For weeks after the summer show business for the nurseryman and the florist is encouraged. People see things at the show and want to possess them in their gardens, with the result that they visit the nurseries and the shops of the florists and order the plants that they most desire.

This is one phase of the work of the association. Another very important result of its efforts is the impression which shows of this kind have upon tourists. Held, as it is, at the height of the tourists' season, the show is visited by dozens of people from all over Canada, the United States and more distant places. They see what can be done here in the way of gardening, and it makes them realize, as few other things can, that Victoria and Vancouver Island is a good place to live. The writer knows of several people, now resident on the Island, who got their first idea of moving here from seeing exhibits at flower shows. The Victoria Horticultural Association is doing its full share towards building up Victoria and the Island.

To keep this good work going takes money. The association would be glad to enroll as members all those who take an interest in growing things and in beautifying the surroundings of the city and district. Membership is only $1 a year and members get full value for their money in the lectures and discussions which are a feature of the monthly meetings.

No notice of the summer show would be complete without reference to the president of the association, Mr. F. Landsberg, that ever-active best citizen of Victoria who, in spite of being a very busy man, finds time to do as much for the work of his organization. Mr. Landsberg is appreciated by every citizen of Victoria and perhaps, more particularly, by members of the Victoria Horticultural Association.

The secretary, Mr. Boulter, is another tireless worker. He has been secretary of the Association for many years and he is one of those rare individuals who never get discouraged.

Wise Gardeners Are Choosing Plants Now

The planting days of autumn are not many weeks off now. While flowers are still in bloom is the best time to choose those you will add to your garden when the first rains come. Many experienced gardeners visit our nurseries these days and mark individual Perennials, Roses, Shrubs, Trees and Rock Plants which appeal to them. Our new catalogue will be issued shortly and it, too, will be interesting to you.

HIS FIFTH ATTEMPT

SIR THOMAS LIPTON, EIGHTY YEARS old, left London yesterday for New York on his fifth attempt to recapture the pewter trophy emblematic of the world's yachting championship, Shamrock V, upon which he pins his hopes, is now sailing across the Atlantic, while on the United States side elimination contests are being held to decide which yacht will defend the championship. It is reported that the total cost to the fighting baronet of this effort to lift the "America's Cup" will be $3,500,000. From first to last, that is, since 1899, Sir Thomas Lipton has spent $12,000,000 in his attempts to capture a trophy which originally cost $500.

The first of the contests between yachts representing Great Britain and the United States took place at Cowes in 1851 for a cup given by the Royal Yacht Club. Fifteen vessels contested and the race resulted in a very close victory for the United States yacht America, which had crossed the Atlantic on her own bottom for the contest. The America had been specially built in New York for the purpose. Her tonnage was 171, and her length over all was 94 feet. She had a crew of thirteen, and her total cost was about $21,000.

The cup won by the America, although not originally intended for a challenge trophy, afterwards was given to the New York Yacht Club by the owner of the winning vessel, and became a challenge trophy under the name of "America's Cup." Nineteen years after the first race at Cowes, the British yacht Cambria, crossed the Atlantic in an attempt to win the championship, but was beaten by the United States yacht Magic. In 1871 the British yacht Lionessa made the attempt, but failed. Other efforts to lift this trophy were made in 1876, 1881, 1885, 1886 and 1887 with similar results. In 1893 Lord Dunraven sent his Valkyrie II, but she was beaten by the Vigilant. Two years later Lord Dunraven tried again with Valkyrie III which, however, was beaten by the Defender.

Then, in 1899, Sir Thomas Lipton, millionaire tea merchant of Glasgow, took a hand in the game, and sent over Shamrock I, which was beaten by Columbia in three straight heats. Two years later Sir Thomas made another gallant effort with Shamrock II which was beaten by the same Columbia, also in three straight heats, each of which, however, was closely contested. Sir Thomas made his third bid in 1903, but this time his yacht was badly outclassed by the defending boat Reliance.

Sir Thomas then took a long rest, and it was not until 1920, seventeen years later, that he issued his fourth challenge. In this contest seven heats were found necessary, because on two occasions neither of the boats finished within the time limit. The series were won by the defending yacht Resolute.

Now, nearly eighty years from the time of the first race, and over thirty years since he made his initial attempt to win the cup, Sir Thomas will try his fortunes again with his fifth Shamrock. This yacht has been designed with special regard to the weather conditions generally found on the Sandy Hook course at this season, when the prevailing winds are usually much lighter than those at Cowes or in the Firth of Clyde. This no doubt accounts for the several defeats which Shamrock V sustained in some of her trials in the Old Country by yachts built for the heavier weather there.

The primary advantage in all these races, of course, must be with the defending yachts, which are lightly built to meet local conditions and do not have to cross the Atlantic on their own bottoms. While the America sailed from New York to take part in a race in which she won the trophy in 1851, and all the other attempts to recapture the cup have been made in similar circumstances, it was not until 1887 that it was expressly stipulated that the challenging yacht "must proceed under sail on her own bottom" to the locality where the contest is to take place. It was in that year, too, that the types of the competing vessels, which up to then were very much different from one another, began to show marked similarity.

While there will be intense interest in the forthcoming contest, the personal factor probably will make an even greater appeal to the world, for there can be nothing in the actual race more striking than the spectacle of the indomitable octogenarian challenger himself as he eagerly follows the progress of his gallant ship in his fifth attempt to take back to the Old Country the trophy which was lost nearly eighty years ago.

TOTEM POLES OF THE GITSKAN

WHEN SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE, the first white man to cross Canada from coast to coast, published the journal of his travels, he described in great detail one of the Indian tribes on the coast but he did not mention totem poles. Probably totem poles were far less numerous at that time than in the nineteenth century owing to the introduction of steel tools which greatly lessened the labor and cost of erecting a pole. Archaeologists have found stone carvings of the same type as the wooden totem poles in ancient deposits on the west coast of Canada, proving that the Indians had developed this type of art many centuries ago.

Totem poles were once a characteristic form of plastic art among the tribes of the northwest coast of Canada and southern Alaska. The natives took pride in them and considered them symbols of their own social standing and achievements. Just recently the National Museum of Canada published a volume on the "Totem Poles of the Gitksan, Upper Skeena River, British Columbia," by Marius Barbeau, which undoubtedly will be a welcome addition to the meagre literature on this subject. Mr. Barbeau is widely known for his ethnological work for the National Museum of Canada and as the author of "Indian Days in the Canadian Rockies," "The Downfall of Temeleah," and other semi-popular treatises. Four field seasons, between 1920 and 1926, were spent on the Upper Skeena River collecting information concerning the totem poles of the Gitksan.

The totem poles were not idols. They were monuments to the illustrious dead, and existing totem poles on the west coast of Canada are the property of the heirs of the Indian families by whom they were erected. It was the custom among the Indians that when a chief, or a prominent member of the clan died, his family would erect a totem pole to commemorate him. The ceremony at the erection of a totem pole was the occasion of much entertainment and feasting, the family of the dead man acting as hosts to the visiting Indians, many of whom came long distances for the celebration.

The volume on the totem poles of the Gitksan, contains a general description of the totem poles together with other information concerning them, as well as detailed descriptions of apparently typical poles. Thirty-three interesting illustrations are also included.

AFTERMATH OF THE WAR

TRYING TO MAKE SENSE OUT OF THE late news from China is an almost impossible job. Battle, murder and sudden death seem to have been let loose once more on a wholesale scale, with the city of Changsha coming in for the most attention; but what is it all about, which faction is which, and what the upshot is likely to be are questions that cannot easily be answered.

The one thing that stands out is that China's long period of turmoil is nowhere near an end. A few years ago the emergence of the Nationalist party made it look as if some sort of order would be maintained. Now the situation looks just as bad as ever, and the one safe bet is that there will be a great deal more violence and bloodshed before China gets a rest. Changsha was looted by an army said to be under "Red" control. At this distance its leaders look very much like ordinary bandits; they act like them, whether they are inspired by a desire for money or by a yen for Communism, and it is very hard to find any definite set of principles back of any of the revolutionary movements in that country.

In a general way, it is probably true that China, along with most of the rest of the Orient, is still liquidating the World War. That final catastrophe was an even greater cataclysm than we usually suppose. Its reverberations have not died away yet, and it will be a long time until they do.

The World War was a most powerful ferment. It not only changed the map of Europe; it loosed on the world a flood of new ideas and new movements, and they are working powerfully. It brought Bolshevism to the surface, and the Bolshevik undoubtedly is at least partly responsible for China's trouble. It filled India with unrest. From the Nile to the Yellow Sea it stirred men up, broke down old customs and routines and deposited a heritage of turbulence. What the final solution will be no man can say. We can understand things better, however, if we recognize the fact that the trouble in the Orient to-day is largely an outgrowth of the war. It will be a long, long time before the explosion that was touched off sixteen years ago stops re-echoing.

FINE SPECTACLES, ANYWAY

WHETHER THESE GIANT NEW DI- rigibles will eventually prove commercially practical as Transatlantic passenger carriers or not, it must be admitted that they provide an enormous thrill for the spectator.

Merely to see such an enormous bulk float lightly off into the air is in itself something of a miracle. Add to that the fact that these newest ships have promenade decks, staterooms, dining-rooms, bars and other luxurious appointments and you have something irresistible in its appeal.

It may be that their cost will prevent them from becoming money-makers in commercial service. But at any rate they are among the most interesting things men have yet constructed.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BROADCASTING IN BRITAIN
 A. G. Gardner in The London Star

In nothing in recent years have we been so fortunate as in the management of this great matter. It might so easily have gone wrong. It might have got into private hands and become the instrument for boosting somebody's pills or soap, as in America. It might have been vulgarized and commercialized like the cinema. It might have degraded the public taste to its lowest terms. Instead, it has been sustained on a level of enlightened intelligence that has made it the standard and envy of the world, and among the great public servants of the time I count none higher than the remarkable man to whose fine instincts and firmness of will we chiefly owe this beneficial fact.

THE CURSE OF NOISE
 The Detroit Free Press

Investigations made by the noise abatement commission appointed by the New York Commissioner of Health confirm preceding reports that "very loud, explosive, irregular or staccato noises" cause deafness, heightened pulse rates, increased blood pressure, irregularities in heart rhythm and increase of pressure on the brain. The human machine makes a valiant struggle to adjust itself. But brains and ear drums and nerves have not yet evolved soundproof shock absorbers. The noise abatement commission seems to have discovered that nature is closer to the point of rebellion than it is comforting for us to contemplate.

Loose Ends

Something is about to happen next door—for to-morrow will be an important anniversary—and everyone else is enjoying it in advance, whatever the little girl may think.

By H. B. W.

WHATEVER SHORTCOMINGS you find about this column, you will have to blame them on the calendar, for, according to the calendar, to-morrow will be the second birthday of the little girl next door. The little girl next door being just two years old, the whole neighborhood is in a state of turmoil, getting ready for a birthday party to-morrow, and the grown-ups, of course, are more excited about it than the lady around whom all this excitement centres.

YES, THE LITTLE girl next door is two full years old now, and it seems only yesterday that her young father came staggering home from the hospital to announce the depths of an unfathomable disappointment that it wasn't a boy after all. Since then we have seen a lot of the little girl next door. We have known her in the perambulator stage, the creeping stage, the toddling stage and the talking stage. We have watched her diet change from the rich milk of George Pudding's Jersey cow to astonishing quantities of meat, vegetables, fruit, chocolates and everything else she can find, and her affections shift from a teddy bear to a full-grown doll, which closes its eyes and emits a single blood-curdling cry if you lay it down on its back. As for her parents, grandmothers, aunts, uncles, cousins, and all, in fact, who can claim the most remote relationship, have been working themselves up to a frenzy over this birthday party for a week. Early this morning the central feature of the party, the birthday cake, was mixed up in the kitchen next door with much argument, between the mother and the grandmother, as to whether orange or chocolate icing was best for stomachs two years old. Eventually chocolate won, but in the heat of this fierce controversy it was discovered that they had forgotten to insert the baking powder which, I understand, is a necessary concomitant of chocolate and rich cakes. My understanding was confirmed when the cake settled down with a look of utter despair into a flat pancake-like object, very heavy and gooey. They fed it to the young husband next door for his lunch and he felt queer all afternoon.

IT IS NO WONDER that the little girl next door suspects that something is up. Her parents, grandmothers, aunts, uncles, cousins, and all, in fact, who can claim the most remote relationship, have been working themselves up to a frenzy over this birthday party for a week. Early this morning the central feature of the party, the birthday cake, was mixed up in the kitchen next door with much argument, between the mother and the grandmother, as to whether orange or chocolate icing was best for stomachs two years old. Eventually chocolate won, but in the heat of this fierce controversy it was discovered that they had forgotten to insert the baking powder which, I understand, is a necessary concomitant of chocolate and rich cakes. My understanding was confirmed when the cake settled down with a look of utter despair into a flat pancake-like object, very heavy and gooey. They fed it to the young husband next door for his lunch and he felt queer all afternoon.

THIS WAS A DISAPPOINTMENT, but it did not interfere with the great project. Another cake was baked, baking powder was inserted, and as I write this it has risen to remarkable heights of excellence and lightness. The young woman next door went to town to-day and bought candles for the cake, three of them, since they were three for five cents, but the extra one will be useful next year. Many other things have been purchased as well, and I have just been over next door to view them, all set out like a bride's presents at a wedding.

THE CEREMONY of viewing the birthday presents next door, indeed, was quite exciting. I found three old ladies pawing over a little set of tin dishes and severely admiring the tiny cups, forks, cream jugs, plates and spoons, which were universally pronounced just too cute for words, quite ducky and such an improvement over what they used to sell in our day, my dear. At the same time an elderly uncle, who has a white mustache and a very red nose, was extracting horrible sounds from his toy mouth organ, which was torture to all present, and would have awakened anyone with a constitution less vigorous than that of the little girl next door.

A SECOND UNCLE, who weighs close to 300 pounds and exaggerates the facts with a white waistcoat and a massive gold watch chain, was risking imminent destruction through apoplexy by blowing up the toy balloons which are to be distributed to the little guests to-morrow. By thrusting his vest out until the buttons almost broke and jingling his massive, gold watch chain, the old gentleman succeeded in blowing up two balloons, but, unhappily could not stop at the right point and burst them both with a bang which replaced the purl of exertion on his cheeks by the white of terror. When I left he was still diligently at work, but I fear there will be few whole balloons when his labors are accomplished.

THE GRANDPARENTS of the little girl next door had just returned from a toy shop with an air of triumph, bearing under his arm a mysterious bundle. Being opened, this disclosed what he assured me was the very latest toy known, a mechanical tractor with caterpillar tread and everything. To prove which, he lay down at full length on the floor, wound the machine up and demonstrated that it would crawl over two large books piled one on top of the other, like a veritable army tank. I did not break his heart by pointing out that the little girl next door would instantly destroy the caterpillar treads, which are made of rubber, and that the tractor would crawl no more after to-morrow.

THE MOST VIGOROUS preparations for to-morrow's party were proceeding in the bathroom. There the father of the little girl next door, together with two gentlemen of mature years who are cousins twice removed (which is once too little), were experimenting with a truly remarkable toy. It is a submarine which you wind up and place at one end of the bathtub and it promptly drives beneath the water and comes up at the other end, striking its bow violently. For a full hour these gentlemen, who in the daytime conduct important business enterprises and order about large organizations of clerks and stenographers, started the submarine at one end of the bath just to see it go to the other end and under water. For a full hour they argued over the technical principles which made it perform in this fashion. And when they emerged from the bathroom after these valuable experiments they were wringing wet from head to foot and beaming with delight. And so, even if the little girl next door follows her usual practice of ignoring all these handsome presents to cling to the doll with the hideous wall, I feel that the party already has been a success anyway.

AFRIDI RAIDS END IN DEFEAT OF TRIBESMEN

British Troops Defending Northwestern India City Win Skirmish With Afghans

Peshawar, India, Aug. 11.—British troops, after a sharp skirmish yesterday, beat off a raiding group of Afridi tribesmen in gardens close to this key city of Northwestern India.

The Afridis, part of a force of between 5,000 and 10,000 warriors, attacked the military supply depot near the Peshawar railway station.

Troops sent out to protect the depot drove them into a group of gardens, where there was a hot engagement. The Afridis were dislodged from their position and driven back.

CHECKED AT ALL POINTS
 Peshawar last night breathed a little more freely. The invaders were reported checked at all points, and though great tension still existed, the immediate danger to the city was regarded as past.

The Afridis had not yet attempted to make a general attack in force on the city, which is strongly garrisoned. The chief worry among British authorities now is that other tribes may follow the lead of the Afridis, who came down the Bara River Valley over the Khyber Pass and caused a general flare-up along the Afghan frontier.

WIRES ARE CUT
 Simla, India, Aug. 11.—Raiding parties of Afridi tribesmen on Saturday night cut all telegraph and telephone lines running east and south out of Peshawar. Communications with the northwestern stronghold was very scanty yesterday.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, AUGUST 11, 1905

This afternoon the opening events of the annual N.P.A.A.O. regatta are taking place over the Esquimalt course. To-day's races are being contested only by the junior crews representing the different athletic organizations belonging to the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

It is reported that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company are seriously considering the addition of another wing to the hotel that is now beginning to assume definite shape on the James Bay flats.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity: Fresh westerly winds, continued fine to-day and Saturday, not much change in temperature.

One of the best evidences of the success of the salmon traps on the shores of Vancouver Island is now forthcoming, in the demand for more sites. Additional traps will be operated another year, and besides the new cannery to which reference was made in these columns a short time ago, there will, in all probability, be several others.

The management of the tramway company planned more wisely than they knew in arranging their new park above the Gorge. The lunch tables on the grounds are in demand almost every day and it is not an uncommon sight to see several parties waiting in turn for the use of one.

Yesterday the launch Shamrock did a good business in carrying people up the arm.

STOCK PARADE BIG FEATURE OF ANNUAL FAIR

Six-horse Teams to Head One of Largest Stock Displays Ever Seen Here

One of the chief features of the annual Provincial Exhibition, which will be opened next Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock by the Lieutenant-Governor, will be the stock parade. The stock parade will start at 2.30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, August 20, and will be held in the central field at the Willows Oval.

Interest in the parade will centre around the six-horse teams, some of which have been brought here all the way from Oregon. Two of the strongest entries from the United States are those from the stables of A. C. Ruby, Portland, and Frank Burge, Albany, Oregon. Opposing them in an effort to keep the laurels in Canada will be, among others, the Mainland Transfer, Vancouver, the Fraser Valley Milk Producers, and the famous Rawlinson team from Alberta.

Along with large entries of sheep, goats, swine and various other stock breeds, the parade will include 142 head of heavy horses, 98 of light horses, and 350 head of high-class cattle.

FIRE HAZARD IN PROVINCE AT ITS PEAK

Hot and Dry Conditions Prevail Throughout Province; Warning Issued

Hot, dry and extremely hazardous forest fire conditions prevail all over the province at the present time, according to the weekly report of P. Z. Caverhill, chief forester.

Warning is issued to the public to be very careful with fire, especially in dry wooded areas. Motorists on high ways are requested to make sure cigarettes and cigar butts are properly extinguished before being thrown out. Co-operation in every regard will help to cut down the total of forest fire depredations which has reached a high mark this year.

Last week 188 new fires occurred in different parts of the province and 160 were extinguished. A continuation of extremely hazardous conditions over an indefinite period is predicted. Up to last Friday, 1,378 fires had occurred in the province this year, compared with 1,284 up to that date last year and 1,058 in 1928. The Vancouver area, which includes the island, shows an increase of sixty fires this year over last.

HINDENBURG TOURS LIBERATED RHINELAND

Following hard on the heels of the last of the Allied troops to evacuate the Rhineland, President von Hindenburg is shown here (centre, foreground) as he visited Speyer, where the former enemy had held sway for more than eleven years. Behind him, in uniform, is his son, Oberleutnant von Hindenburg, while at the left is Foreign Minister Curtius, and at the right, Bavarian Premier Heide. They went on a five-day tour through the region recently liberated from Allied control.

A Canadian Heroic Episode

"Everything in this glorious deed of arms," says Leblond De Brumath in his florid way, "must compel the admiration of the most remote posterity." He is summing up on Dollard's stand against the Iroquois at Greec's Point on the Ottawa River in July, 1660. No complaint can be made that the praise is excessive; Dollard and his sixteen men went out on a forlorn hope and none of them survived. They barricaded themselves in a stockade in the path of the Indian invasion of Montreal, and the business of killing them was so bloody and exasperating to the Iroquois that they abandoned a direct attack in mass on the settlement. Dollard's stand saved the French colony. This exploit is sometimes referred to picturesquely as Canada's Thermopylae," says T. B. R. of The Free Press.

The appalling ferocity of the native Indians is dwelt upon in detail in the records of early settlement in Eastern Canada. The Indian, on account of the fantastic cruelty with which he tortured prisoners of war, assumes a diabolic aspect as we look back at him through the tunnel of observation constructed by white historians. But cruel as he was, the Indian was fighting an invader far tougher than himself, endowed with a courage which was colder, and immensely more resolute than his own, and far more futuristic in its detonations. The stand at Greec's Point brings out all these qualities for our approval.

When it became known in July, 1660, that the Indians, led by the Iroquois, were advancing against Montreal, the colonists took the usual measures for their own protection, such as drawing in stragglers, building redoubts, sending out patrols, etc., and preparing generally for the anticipated attack. All this rumor of invasion and erection of defenses must have taken some time. The Indians seem to have hung about in the woods spending their days in hunting, picking off individual settlers, and working round rather erratically to a combined rub on the fortifications. And it was in this period of tension that Adam Dollard des Ormeaux came forward with his sixteen companions.

These seventeen men announced that they intended to establish an outpost some considerable distance from Montreal and hold it against the Indian advance. The place they chose is conjectured; it is supposed to have been near Greec's Point, five or six miles above Carillon. Dollard was leader; all seventeen of them knew perfectly well they were going to a desperate death. They would be dressed in leather coats, and have tanned faces, and speak the French of the age of Louis the Great, and wear swords and pistols in their belts, and carry the guns of the period, and be full of muscular strength and health, and the July sun would be beating down warmly on their heads as they decided to go out and do this thing. Seventeen vigorous young Canadian men, tightening their belts, lacing up their boots, and swearing French oaths, and resolute to fight.

They took Mass in the Church of Montreal, and all the town was there to see them off. There were sentimental scenes. Mothers clinging to Pierre and Jacques and Henri; and sweethearts, and the family, not wanting them to go; and the sun-tanned, leather-coated fighters finally extricating themselves from these gusts of sob and weeping and going off into the wilderness led by Dollard.

At Greec's Point, chosen because it was in the path of the Indian advance, they took possession of a palisaded fortification, and were joined by two friendly Indian chiefs—Anahata, with forty Huron warriors, and Metameque, with four Algonquins. Thus reinforced Dollard and his men awaited developments.

A fight to the death is the ultimate fight any living creature can accommodate. Dollard's men were under no illusions; but their Indian auxiliaries weakened when the thing became frightful. The Hurons jumped the palisade and made terms with the Iroquois; the Huron chief stayed behind and died, and all five of the Algonquins died like men too. As for Dollard and Dollard's fighters, they were there for—well, to die—but to die ruinously, catastrophically for their killers. And this they did.

It was a hard age. It was the age of Louis XIV in France and of Cromwell in England. The days of dungeons, tortures, the headman's axe, and large and prominent executions by the rope; the time in modern history when the living human body could be wrung and wrenched asunder in the streets of Paris while the mob looked on and believed that what they saw was an act of justice. It is the Indian was a terror, the white man was familiar with all the terrors of life and cruelty, and was equipped, moreover, to deal with them adequately.

This now happened. When the Hurons deserted them, Dollard and his men and the six Indians seized the enemy in the death grapple. The stockade was blazing and shattered. Dollard's men swung axes on the invaders and fired their muzzle-loaders into them; hacked off their heads when they got their enemies on the ground, and spiked them, screaming and convulsed with the worst consequences. They were all down. "It is here," he cried, "that Dollard died." And went down with his enemy, and the fight was over.

The shock was too much for the victorious Iroquois. The seventeen white men were too terrible a foreboding; and looking at the bodies of their dead, at the desperate hurts of their wounded, the Iroquois shrank from further attacks on fortified white positions; they turned aside from Montreal. Dollard's men and auxiliaries had saved the settlements. July, 1660. A heroic episode in Canada's story.

More than seventy-five per cent of the more than 6,000,000 goatskins produced annually in India are converted into leather in the United States. A blind man in England has invented a camera that makes prints almost as rapidly as it produces negatives.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Spirit" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday. The golden text was from Romans 8:10: "The Spirit is life because of righteousness."

One of the Scriptural texts contained in the lesson-lesson was, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law" (Galatians 5:22, 23).

Following the reading of the Bible texts, passages were also read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, one passage being the following from page 241: "The Bible teaches transformation of the body by the renewal of Spirit."

Tests have indicated that a new metal found in Utah fuses lead and copper with other metals, reduces the flowing temperature of molten metals and increases the tensile strength of iron and steel.

It is estimated that 4,000 persons were executed with the guillotine during the French Revolution.

Rumor of King Carol To Wed Mme. Lupescu

Vienna, Aug. 11.—A prominent diplomat passing through Vienna after a stay in Bucharest, Saturday told friends it was rumored in Roumanian Court circles that King Carol was seriously contemplating a morganatic marriage with the titan-haired flame of his exile, Mme. Magda Lu Pescu.

It was said the king had therefore decided to press further the question of an annulment of his divorce from Queen Helen.

The morganatic marriage envisaged would bar the royal succession to any children. Although they could never succeed to the throne they might bear titles of nobility. Mme. Lupescu's prerogatives would be limited.

The diplomat said King Carol's friends were trying to dissuade him from the project because Mme. Lupescu is of Jewish extraction and because by it they think the king would forfeit the support of the army, which welcomed him on his return from exile.

Mme. Lupescu, for whom Carol abjured his rights to the throne while crown prince, was last reported living in Switzerland. It was said a secret agreement barred her from entering Roumanian for a great many years. Rumors she would none the less return have been denied by government circles in Bucharest.

Langford Defeats Victoria "C" Net Players 15 to 9

Matches were played in the three doubles events and the home team obtained an edge in all three. Mrs. Forbes, Mrs. Parker, Miss Grace Ryall, Miss Peggy Horne, Miss Ryan and Miss Marjorie Ryall comprised the feminine section of the Victoria team, while Agnes, Witter, King, Reade, Rev. S. Ryall and S. H. Ryall upheld the honor of the local club in the men's events.

YOUR BABY and MINE

Mrs. Eldred with no mind to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

AIMS OF THE DEPARTMENT AND SERVICE IT OFFERS

Every so often we like to pause long enough to acquaint new readers with the aims of this department and the possibilities for making use of its various medical services.

This is not a medical department for either children or adults. It is not a department for solving the problems of adults except as they relate to the behavior toward their children. It is, we hope, a column to help the parent to a better knowledge of his children and how best to manage their feeding, care and behavior problems.

Even healthy children present problems. They won't eat, they refuse to obey, their formulas disagree, they wet the bed, they quarrel. In fact, in most cases, they refuse to act like the model children each mother was sure her children would be.

It is our endeavor to help the mother handle these situations when they arise, to warn her what to expect and not expect of children of any age and also what attitude of hers will encourage the best behavior.

We have been keeping up to date with the new methods of feeding infants and children, with knowledge of all kinds of formulas, what to give the child in addition to the milk formula, and when to give it, and we are glad of the refreshment room during exhibition week at the Willows. Proposals for two new candidates were received.

The next meeting is to be held on September 4. Officers are requested to note that degree team drill will be resumed on Tuesday, August 26, at 2 o'clock in the Sons of England Hall.

Parent Examiners never punish their children.

Lodge Held Meeting.—The business meeting of Lodge Princess Alexandra, No. 18, D.O.E., was held on Thursday in the S.O.E. Hall, Worthy Sister Fieldhouse in the chair. Mrs. Thibault, convener, and her committee were given a hearty vote of thanks on the success of the picnic held at the Willows Park recently. Mrs. Dudley Bell and her committee will be in charge to share this specific information with every mother.

Knowledge of food and baby care is the privilege of every mother, as well as her duty. Even if the mother consults a pediatricist monthly (and this is the ideal course for every mother to follow) it is impossible to ask him every question which puzzles her. Keep in mind, too, that a pediatricist can best help a well-informed mother.

We have hundreds of leaflets going into detail on each subject. Any of these will be sent to any mother who tells us her problem in sufficient detail so that we can select the ones most helpful to her.

We cannot help any mother without having some important facts about her child. The important details are baby's weight at birth, present weight, and exactly how and when he or she is fed. Without this knowledge one merely guesses at the reason for any unusual behavior or upset. To write: "My baby cries every night, what is wrong?" is the sort of question that by its indefiniteness and lack of description of the infant leaves us entirely in the dark.

If the problem is one of behavior, give age and weight of child as an index to his general condition, and whether he is an only child or one of several and something about the home conditions. This gives some sort of picture of the child which makes advice possible.

For any of the leaflets, or for the answer to any question not covered by leaflets, the reader must enclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope so that I may return the information to her. Otherwise I am compelled to answer the letter in its turn in the paper, and this obviously takes time.

Draw Announced For Golf Opening To-morrow At Colwood

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Will somebody rise and tell us why the Philadelphia National League ball team cannot win ball games? This has become to many the awful mystery of this baseball age. It is a team of sluggers. Led by Chuck Klein and Lefty O'Doul, to both of whom the average of 400 is just a whole lot of fun, the club leads the league in the department of pitcher punishment. When we glanced over the team batting marks the other day, the Phils were leading, with a mark of .328. That is a whole lot of willow work.

Would the secret be hidden in the fielding averages? No, not there, for the Phils as a team are not bad fielders. In recent tabulations they were fourth in the league in fly-catching and grounder-stabbing. There are some fine infielders in the Philly camp. Pinky Whitney is a nifty third baseman. There are Thevenow, Hurst, Fresco, Thompson, Sherlock and the efficient Friberg, the handy man.

Shuffling Phil Collins has won a topheavy percentage of his games. A recent average was ten wins and three losses. But aside from Collins there is not another 500 pitcher on the club. Much was expected of Willoughby this year. He won one and lost nine of his first ten games. Of his first thirteen games, Ray Benge won six and lost seven. Collard won five and lost six of his first eleven. Elliott won three and lost six out of nine. Sweetland, in his first eight games, won two and lost six.

From the figures, it begins to appear that only the pitchers can be blamed. Yet they simply cannot be that terrible. In two recent games the team made thirty great big runs—and lost both games. It looks as though Burt Shotton himself could step in there and pitch better ball than that.

The team has been playing heads up ball. And meeting with the toughest kind of breaks a ball team ever felt help to explain some of the things. Look at Brooklyn last year and this year for the other side of the luck story. Last year the Brooklyn pitchers looked sour. This year Flatbush was full of Christy Mathewson and Eddie Plank. The same guys, too, with a couple of new faces.

Burt is sure of his job for next year, according to advice from Philly. Baker likes him. Everybody like Burt, in fact, but the baseball fans have treated him harshly. Here is a man to whom we wish a whole lot of good luck and a bunch of capable fingers.

Frank Hunter was beaten by Ellsworth Vines in two big tennis tournaments recently. Mr. Hunter probably feels that he's got nothing fooling around with Vines but sour grapes.

Burling Grimes says the St. Louis Cards are charitable, calling the team the "Red Cross club" of baseball. We don't know about the Red Cross, but the Cards have had plenty of other crosses this season.

Grimes, in calling the Cards a charity club, however, makes an auspicious wonder how much Branch Rickey is paying Mr. Grimes.

Two of the four trials plays in the major this season have been pulled off by the lowly Cincinnati Reds. But, says O'Grady, they have to make triple plays in Cincinnati.

O'Grady also says that to judge by the scores in Cincinnati the visitors have five or six men on the bases all the time.

British Women Seis Swim Mark
Bemus Point, N.Y., Aug. 11.—In an exhibition race, the feature of an outdoor swimming meet conducted here yesterday under the auspices of the Niagara Association of the A.A.U., Joyce Cooper, British women's open champion in the 150-yard backstroke, established a new, but as yet unofficial, world's record for that event. Her time was 1 minute 35 4-5 seconds.

HOCKEY IN DOUBLE WIN AT DUNCAN

Captures Both Doubles Events in South Cowichan Tennis Tourney

Hammond Wins Men's Singles and Evelyn Jones Stars in Women's Events

The finals of the Cowichan Tennis Championships were played off Saturday afternoon before a large gathering at Duncan. Four of the events were for the championships of Vancouver Island while the singles events were of a special nature and carried no titles. Winning up three days of splendid play Miss Evelyn Jones, a visitor to the Duncan district from England, carried off the women's singles and then paired up with the champion, Miss Jones after a lay-off of two seasons was the sensation of the tournament. She had three extra set matches on her way to the finals, but improved with each match. Her match with Mrs. Mona Miller in the semi-finals was one of the best of the tournament. She won the match in three sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3. The winners dropped the first set at 7-5 but took the next two at 6-4, 6-4. It was an exciting match throughout.

Duncan Williams and Ross Hocking won the men's doubles championship. They defeated Frank Kingston and Norman Corfield in the finals and Leney and Raymond in the semi-finals played in the morning. The finals was a good contest and the first two sets were very even. Williams and Hocking took the first set at 6-4. They lost the second set, but rallied sharply to win six successive games after being down set point on several occasions. They won the third set at 6-1.

Miss Evelyn Jones and Ross Hocking won the mixed final from Mrs. Edwards and Hammond in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3. The winners defeated Miss Waidy and Eric Leney in the semi-finals, while Mrs. Edwards and Hammond reached the finals by defeating Mrs. Waidy and Williams.

Harry Carter, of Port Alberni, won the men's consolation singles when he defeated H. Calvert, of Duncan, 6-4, 10-10. Miss B. Greenwood, of Duncan won the women's event from Mrs. Manger, 6-0, 3-6, 6-2.

JUMBO HANDS HOLLIDAY A BAD BEATING
Victoria Bantamweight Finds No Trouble Winning Over Vancouver Boy

Holliday Claims Foul in the Fourth; Ted Beales and Woodford Win Decisions

With Harvey Holliday only a shell of his former self, Jumbo Hands, Victoria's hard hitting bantamweight, found little trouble gaining the call over the Vancouverite in the ten-round bout staged as the main event on Joe Bayley's boxing show at the Variety Theatre on Saturday night. Jumbo clouted the mainlander all over the ring to gain an easy verdict. It was Holliday's first fight in something like two years. The Victoria boy had an edge in about eight of the ten rounds, while one was even, and Holliday had a shade the best of it in the eighth.

Going after his opponent from the start Jumbo soon had him in a bad way from terrific right and left hooks to the stomach. Holliday appeared sluggish and was not in the best of condition, although he took a terrific pelting during the ten rounds. Jumbo had him groggy several times, and if he had bided his time could have scored a knockout. The Victoria boy appeared a little overanxious.

HOLLIDAY CLAIMS FOUL
In the fourth round Davies cornered Holliday and shot several hard rights to the stomach. Holliday was in a bad way, but while the Victoria boy lay loose with another right hook he jumped into the blow and went to the canvas claiming a foul. Referee Al Jeffs waved Davies to a neutral corner and Jumbo got to his feet and managed to last the round.

From then on it was just a case of how much punishment the Vancouver boy could take without going down. However, in the eighth, Holliday showed a flash of his old form and landed two or three stiff right crosses to Jumbo's jaw, but the blows lacked the necessary steam to do any damage.

Ted Beales won an easy decision from Ollie Hanson of Vancouver in the curtain raiser. The Victorian won every round.

Denny Pasto dropped the decision to Marshall of Vancouver in a four-round bout, while Henry Woodford won over Gordie Jones, another Vancouver fighter, in the opening four rounder.

The preliminaries were refereed by Roy Baker.

Johnny McDonald, of Vancouver, challenged the winner of Davies-Holliday bout.

Brooklyn's Lead Over Cubs Sliced To a Single Game
Robins Turned Back Twice by St. Louis Cardinals, While Chicago Wins Two From Boston Braves; Root and Malone Turn in Fine Pitching Performances for Cubs; Washington Hands Cleveland 18 to 6 Drubbing; Ruth Hits Forty-second Home Run as Yankees Beat St. Louis.

Once again Brooklyn Robins are finding the pathway through the western half of the National League circuit a thorny road to travel on their last swing through the west. The pace-setting Robins dropped seven of their thirteen games, and if the results at St. Louis the last three days are any criterion, Brooklyn's pennant hopes are due to receive a severe jolt before the Robins return to Flatbush.

The second and third blow in two days was handed the Robins yesterday when the St. Louis Cardinals took a double header, the first 8 to 3 and the nightcap, 4 to 0. The double defeat while the Cubs were winning two games, gave Brooklyn just a one-game advantage over the league champions. Burling Grimes pitched steady ball in the first but "Wild Bill" Hallahan was brilliant in the closing contest. He let the Robins down with five hits and fanned twelve.

CUBS WIN PAIR
The Cubs took the measure of the Boston Braves, 4 to 0, and 11 to 2. A pair of highly polished pitching performances by Charlie Root and Pat Malone and Hack Wilson's home-run bat accounted for Chicago's triumph.

Root set the Braves down with three hits in the opener, while Wilson blasted off his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth home runs. Malone produced a five-hit game in the second, while Hack was sending his thirty-ninth homer over the wall.

The lowly Phillies also won a double header, taking the Cincinnati Reds by the score of 18 to 0 and 4 to 3.

Turning on Cleveland Indians, the Washington Senators managed to hold on to second place in the American League by a margin of two points by slugging out an 18 to 6 victory. Eleven runs in the eighth inning accounted for the large score.

The New York Yankees kept pace with the Senators in a home-run festival with the St. Louis Browns, the New Yorkers winning 14 to 11. Babe Ruth connected with his forty-second homer of the year, while Combs, Cronin and Blue also rapped out circuit blows.

Earl Whiteall chalked up his fifth straight victory for Detroit as the Tigers turned back the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 3.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Chicago, Aug. 11.—A pair of highly-polished pitching performances by Charlie Root and Pat Malone and Hack Wilson's home-run bat gave the Cubs victories in both games of a double-header with Boston yesterday.

Root turned the Braves back with three hits to win a 4 to 0 decision in the opener, in which Wilson blasted out his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth home runs of the season. Malone came up with a five-hit bid in the second game to win 11 to 1, as Wilson got his thirty-ninth homer.

B. H. E. Phillies triumphed the Cubs in both ends of a double-header here yesterday, taking 18 to 0 and 4 to 3.

4,000 Spectators At Big Land and Water Regatta At Cordova

Largest Crowd in History of Event Witnesses Fifteenth Annual Programme of Cordova Bay Recreation Club; Keen Competition Seen in Varied Programme of Land and Aquatic Events; Carnival and Illuminated Parade Feature.

The fifteenth annual regatta of the Cordova Bay Recreation Club, held yesterday and Saturday, was extended over two days, as it required the extra time to run off the numerous events and to give the junior and land events the place they deserved in the spotlight. The weather was ideal, the heat being tempered with a refreshing breeze. In all the forty-one events run off much credit is due to the various committees for their untiring efforts to make everything run smoothly.

The many valuable silver cups were keenly contested for, nearly all the land events having to be run in heats. The ladies' sail-driving contest created great interest, forty-two contestants being entered.

The children's events were greatly enjoyed by onlookers and contestants. Judges for Saturday's events were J. Cameron, assisted by Archie Willis and W. Osgood.

Yesterday the aquatic sports drew the largest crowd that has ever attended. The Victoria Girls' Band, under the direction of J. Hodgskin, rendered a fine selection of music, and backed by the green trees with the sparkling waves, their uniforms formed a bright picture. From start to finish the events were carried out without a hitch.

The contest for the Matson Cup in the men's single canoe race, and for the Bachelors Cup in the five-mile sea-flea race, were outstanding events in the keen competition, and Miss Ruby Bethell got a great ovation when she captured the Matson Cup outright in the ladies' single canoe race, having won it for three consecutive years.

The illuminated decorated boat parade was greatly enjoyed by a large audience who throughout the afternoon were regaled with such a fine brand of sport. Scores of bonfires along the wide expanse of beach completed a striking picture.

The committee were heartily congratulated on their efforts to a crowd of well over 4,000 spectators. The prizes were presented by Alderman J. Adams.

DEMETRAL TOO TOUGH FOR BROOKS

New York Grappler Takes Two Straight Falls From Local Boy Saturday

Des Anderson and Jack McLaughlin Prove Feature of Tillicum Club Wrestling

Harry Demetral, veteran New York grappler, defeated "Rocky" Brooks, Victoria, by straight falls in the eight-round main event on the Tillicum Athletic Club card, Saturday. A five-pound weight advantage, ten years longer in the ring, and apparently inexhaustible durability won the bout for the victor and should stand him in good stead when he meets Karasick here next Saturday. Brooks did not show his usual aggressiveness, losing the first fall with an airplane spin in the fourth round, and succumbing to a flying headlock and body hold in the next session.

The main attraction of the evening, however, was the exhibition of the mat game put on by Des Anderson, Seattle, and Jack McLaughlin of Vancouver in the five-round semi-final. Anderson is a former amateur champion of the United States in his weight, and was also runner-up at the last Olympics, but he could do better than draw at one fall apiece with McLaughlin. Both weighed 138. The bout was the best bit of wrestling Victoria fans have been treated to since the return of the game here some months ago and both men were applauded to the echo when they left the ring.

SHOW GREAT SKILL
Fast and clever, the pair showed greater skill in applying and evading falls than any of their predecessors in the Tillicum ring.

Anderson took the first fall with a flying wrist-lock after twenty seconds of milling in the second round, while McLaughlin evened the count with a body slam when the fourth stanza was forty-five seconds old.

The headliners showed plenty of action during the five rounds their bout lasted, but Demetral knew just a little too much and was just a bit too tough for his local opponent, who was making his debut as a main attraction. Brooks showed to advantage at times during the first part of the fight, applying toe holds and his favorite wrist-locks from time to time. Demetral was not particularly troubled by any of these, however, and took the offensive in the fourth round to retain it for the remainder of the bout.

Making his debut as a grappler, Baptiste Thomas, fighting Indian, won in straight falls from John Neumfeldt, Victoria, in the two-round curtain-raiser. Headlocks, applied early 'n both sessions spelled early disaster for Neumfeldt.

LOCAL HORSE WINS
A. E. Smith, the local owner, scored a surprise win with Ray Schae in the fourth, dashing into the lead soon after the break the flashy chestnut moved away from the field to win handsily by three lengths. Meta Frances recorded a less upset by taking the place and rewarding the few faithful with $22.20 for each $2 invested. In the bye was third with Harry H. Bell, one of the favorites, far down the field after showing a burst of speed at the start.

Glad Effort, Drumheller's star, scored his third straight victory in the last ten days by galloping home five lengths in front of the field in the fifth race. Bay Lad, his stablemate, set the pace and went out four lengths in front of the field but failed to last the distance under pressure from the winner and dropped back to third. Extension, an outsider, was second. Zeek rode the winner.

AGNATE REPEATS
Mrs. M. Agnate's gelding, Agnate, repeated his victory of yesterday by coping the sixth at a mile and seventy yards. A strong finish, under capable handling by Pervic, enabled him to take the lead and win by a length. Spectator, after setting a hot pace at the start, finished in the second slot, with Tatters third.

Jockey Kelly brought home his third winner of the afternoon when he piloted Joseph's Night over the wire. Galloping Joe was second and Mad Boy third.

Par Figures Give You Thirty-six Puts Per Round and, for That Reason, Putting Is

I ATTEMPTED to stress the value of putting in my last article by pointing out that the best golfers almost always are the best putters. When you get into the class of the stars, the difference in their relative merits almost merges down to their play on the greens.

Why is this? Because half the strokes in a round of golf are taken on the greens. For the average course probably is 71, 72 or 73. There are eighteen holes and par always allows two putts for each green. That makes thirty-six putts for the round and approximately half the strokes. Now you understand why putting is so important.

I have no peculiar ideas concerning this part of the game. I believe in making every motion of the putting stroke as natural and as easy as possible. After all, a feeling of ease as the ball is addressed is half the matter of getting the ball down. It inspires confidence.

There is no set formula for standing, for placing the feet or holding the club. Feel comfortable.

LARGE CROWD SEES RACES AT COLWOOD

Best Attendance of Meet Present Saturday; Crowds Are Growing Steadily

Glad Alice Captures Second Race to Pay $34.10, Day's Best Price

Popularity of horse racing in Victoria was demonstrated at the Colwood track on Saturday afternoon when one of the best crowds to ever attend the mile oval was present to watch the ponies gallop in the seven-race programme.

Crowds have been growing daily since the meet opened last Wednesday with Saturday smashing all former attendances. Three or four good prices were seen during the afternoon's sport with Glad Alice, winner of the second race, returning the best of $34.10 for a $2 nose bet.

Ray Schae, A. C. Smith's veteran thoroughbred, always a popular bet with local punters, returned the best best price of $15.10 for a win ticket in the fourth. Meta Frances placed in this race to reward her backers with the comfortable price of $23.20.

KELLY DOES WELL
Jockey Kelly had a great day piloting home three winners during the afternoon.

J. R. Kelly piloted Call G., second choice for the opening event, home in the first slot after a thrilling stretch drive with four horses running like teams. Call G. got the call by half a length from Silks Train which was a head in front of Sally, the third place horse. Moonchild, coming from far back, finished with a strong rush and just missed getting in the money by a neck. The crowd got a great kick out of the finish as the four leaders strove for the call at the wire. Kelly was a slight favorite over Call G. and Moonchild.

UPSETS THE DOPE
The Greenford Stable's three-year-old gelding, Agnate, was a surprise winner by revealing his true form in the second and scored an impressive win to pay off $34.10 straight and about $55 across the board. Glad Alice was given a nice ride by Jockey Marshall who saved ground on the last turn and drew away from the field to win by a length. Bull Run was second and Pangoit third. Bull Run was also an outsider, returning $14.85 to place. Joe G., odds on favorite to take the event, failed to do better than sixth, slowing up after going a half mile.

Kelly recorded his second win of the day by bringing Flying Style down in front in the five furlong third event for two-year-olds. He got the decision by a drumbeat entry, composed of Appasia and Connell did all the pace-making in this race, but Appasia tired and Connell, after getting to the lead, faded in the stretch. The winner's final challenge, School Belle, the favorite, was third, half a length behind Connell.

Hack Wilson Has Fine Chance To Set Home Run Mark

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Just five more home runs—and forty-four games in which to get them—and Hack Wilson of the Cubs, will have set a new National League record for round trip blows.

The pudgy Cub outfielder yesterday faced Boston Brave pitchers for three homers in a double-header to give him a total of 39 for the season, and equal his 1929 record. The league record of 43 was set last year by Chuck Klein of the Phillies, who to-day was ten behind Wilson.

The game was full of thrills and clever plays and the crowd gave the players a great ovation when the match ended.

Winning the toss in the morning the Alberta skipper, Wright, decided to bat and Falk and Dean were sent in to open innings.

Rhodes clean bowled Dean with his first ball with the score at 64 for one wicket. Cartwright came in to join Falk, who was smartly run out when Cartwright played the ball to cover and for a run.

Three wickets down for 72 did not look so good but Arthur Jones joined Cartwright and the pair settled down to business in earnest.

Cartwright eventually went out by the lbw route after making an invaluable 40.

Campbell joined Jones and this pair were still at the wickets when play was adjourned for luncheon with the score at 174 for four wickets.

Campbell and Jones carried the score to 199 before Campbell was dismissed, his contribution being 19.

SMARTLY STUMPED
Wright came in to hit but missed one from Grant and was smartly stumped by Broadfoot. He immediately declared with the score at 283 for eight wickets.

Eric Quanten and Lester opened the British Columbia innings to the bowling of Robson and Wright.

The first wicket fell with but six runs on the board, Quanten going out to a brilliant left-handed catch by Cyril Falk in the slips. Eden Quanten joined Lester and this pair carried the score to 52 before the fall of the second wicket. Broadfoot came in and commenced what proved to be a great attempt to save his side from defeat. The third wicket fell at 72, and from then on none of the other batsmen gave very much trouble.

Manitoba turned the tables on Saskatchewan and secured a good victory, declaring with a score of 270 for seven wickets and dismissed the Saskatchewan eleven for 213. Gillespie overshadowed his teammates and scored his second century of the week.

He established a new tournament record by scoring a century before lunch. His final score before being bowled by Ball was 140.

CLARA BOW IN NAVY PICTURE AT DOMINION

The "IT" Girl Has Leading Role in Clever Comedy "True to the Navy"

Plays Role of Soda-fountain Girl With "Gobs" in Love With Her

Let's go, Clara Bow! Those who snatched up the entertainment treat the "IT" girl offered at the Dominion Theatre to-day had a hilarious afternoon. She is there for three days. Clara has more "IT" than she ever showed before in "True to the Navy," surrounded by a dozen or more love-smitten navy gobs, she knows what is good for the male sex. None of the boys make any headway with the "Red-head" until Freddie March, the same handsome hero who stole her heart in "The Wild Party," lands right. Then Clara gets a taste of her own kitchen. "True to the Navy" would be a good story even without Clara Bow. With Clara flashing her "IT" she makes it a dandy all-round entertainment. Harry Green, the funny man of "Kibitzer" and "Honey," is a riot of laugh-making cracks and pantomime, and the rest of the cast looks as if it ought to.

Clara, a soda-fountain girl in Harry Green's drug store, makes "IT" a big business. All the sailors from the battleships in the harbor flock to the drug store for ice-cream sodas and a smile from Clara. She plays them all, collects the souvenirs, and says goodbye with a smile. She has a special boy-friend on every ship and manages to keep them separated until the whole fleet, and all her special, drop anchor at once. She then she meets Freddie March, a woman-killer gunner's mate and marches to the altar with him over the prostrate forms of half a dozen other smitten sailors.

Tests of more than 700 school children at Columbia University have shown that a stutterm is the intellectual equal of a normal child, and that his vocabulary is as good and usually that he is physically superior.

Lillian Gish In First Talkie At Coliseum Theatre

Clever Actress Plays Leading Role in "The Swan"; One of Year's Best Pictures

The continental waltz, more graceful of all ballroom dances, is the only one, it seems, that Hollywood's "extras" have difficulty in doing correctly. At the United Artists studios, Hollywood, where Paul L. Stein directed "One Romantic Night," the all-dialogue screen adaptation of the French Molnar play, "The Swan," starring Lillian Gish at the Coliseum Theatre, considerable time was wasted teaching the jazz-wise "extras" the proper way to waltz.

The tendency of the "atmosphere" players was to sway their bodies and turn, whereas the continental waltz is strictly formal, with no side or backward movements. Finally, a Russian, who was once a high officer in the Imperial Guard, volunteered to serve as a teacher.

This little incident demonstrates the great care taken by Stein in reproducing the graceful spirit of the celebrated Molnar comedy-drama.

With Miss Gish in the cast are Rod La Rocque, Corrado Vaggli, Marie Dressler, O. P. Heggie, Albert Conti, Edgar Norton, Billie Bennett, Barbara Leonard, Russ Powell, Sam Blum, Philippe de Lacy and Byron Sage.

"High Treason" Most Entertaining Picture With Splendid Cast of Stars

Those who are curious as to what London will be like ten years hence should see "High Treason," an entertaining all-dialogue film forecast of love and life in 1940, now showing at the Playhouse Theatre.

In the picture the London of the future is shown, and the drama is based upon the conflict of a World League of Peace and the militant forces of America and Europe. The recording is excellent. Every word spoken by the principals Jameson Thomas, Benita Hume, Humberston Wright and Basil Gill, is clear and distinct, and apart from dialogue and music, sound effects in many instances are what might be described as spectacular. Sound is used with particular effect in the scenes depicting an explosion in the Channel Tunnel, "making" scenes in a night club on the declaration of war, and scenes of the women's triumphal Peace March.

The representation of life ten years hence affords opportunity for spectacular scenes and settings of unique interest. London is shown with the new Charing Cross Bridge and with buildings provided with flat roofs, landing places for airplanes and helicopters. The destruction of New York by incendiary bombs and gas dropped from the air is extraordinarily well done, and the explosion in the Channel Tunnel is a graphic piece of realism. Sartorial surprises abound. Women sport useful but dainty plus-four suits for office wear, while for evening occasions divided skirts with knee breeches are evidently the thing.

George Arliss In "Disraeli" Shows At the Columbia

Although he was a conservative of conservatives, Disraeli, the famous British premier, had the gay nickname of "Diz." It only falls to certain public officials to acquire nicknames, and these are usually conferred by the public. The public liked the name "Diz" for Roosevelt, and "Hell's Maria" was given to Vice-President Dawes. Coolidge had his name shortened to "Cal." The nickname "Diz," however, was given to Disraeli by his wife, Lady Beaconsfield, and was used intimately by all of his friends. It was not a nickname conferred by the public.

The nickname is used throughout in the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone version of "Disraeli," the famous George Arliss starring production which is now showing at the Columbia Theatre. Arliss believes that the use of the nickname tends to humanize the characterization.

Great White Way Falls Into Decay

Scintillating Broadway Faces Future of Cheap Shows, Fakers, Shyster Auctions and Tawdry Shops.

New York, Aug. 11.—The shadow of doom lies across the street that is Broadway. The Moving Finger has writ, and Broadway, having no pity to speak of and little wit, is scarcely to be expected to escape a fatal wound. Such is the verdict of "Sime Silverman," the veteran editor of Variety, who has observed what he terms, the decay of the greatest street in New York with little or no effort made to arrest attacks on its business, its property values and the calibre of those who use it as a business place. From the vantage point of his editorship of the theatrical weekly, Sime has watched the changes which have come over Broadway for a quarter of a century. He predicts that unless strenuous efforts are made to ameliorate conditions in the Times Square Section, Broadway in the 40's will pass away the way of the Broadway Tenth Street, Twenty-third and Thirty-fourth vanished as an amusement centre in past decades.

"The pictures that are at work tearing the Times Square district apart for the new Rockefeller-Radio Centre might just as well be tearing down the ancient buildings, the dirty rat-infested barracks on the street that used to be famous for its gayety and its bright lights," says Sime. "When Rockefeller announced that he was going to build theatres, opera houses, broadcasting radio and television, magnificent new edifices with every modern convenience for the public, he signed the death warrant of everything on the good old street except the movie palaces."

Silverman's point of view as to conditions in the Times Square district is concurred in by John E. Gratzke, managing director of the Broadway Association, the slogan of which is "Give to the Theatre." Gratzke believes that nobody in the Times Square section seems to have been doing.

STREET OF GRIFTERS
To continue Silverman's indictment "Broadway has become a street of grifters, side-showmen, barkers, medicine men and rvy artists. Take a walk up Broadway from Forty-second Street and you will find a succession of restaurants, auction stores, old office buildings and cheap retail shops, with the exception of the theatre district, the street since the war due to the act of the movie picture theatre chain operators.

"Since prohibition, there's nothing on Broadway that the out-of-town visitor cannot buy at home, except the movie presentations. The legitimate theatre has been driven to the side streets. At this moment not a single legitimate play is on Broadway. Last winter, with the exception of a flop at the George M. Cohan Theatre and a show which moved in there for a few weeks from another house, not a single play was produced in the block between Forty-second and Fifty-third Streets. The only real Broadway shows were those at the Empire Theatre at Forty-third Street and the Hammerstein Theatre at Fifty-third Street.

"The worst kind of a medicine show operated at Forty-seventh and Broadway all winter. A more dignified medicine show is now going on at Fifty-third Street. The auctioneers have become more and more daring. Now they are using loud-speakers and amplifiers to draw in the suckers. How can a reputable merchant open a store on Broadway in the face of such competition?

"As for merchants, try to find an accurate list of those who have occupied stores between Forty-second and Fifty-third Streets in the last few years. You can't. They come in and out so fast that no one can keep track of them. Once upon a time Times Square boasted of a few high class local stores. To-day, with the exception of a few chain stores, little reputable merchandising is done on Broadway.

VALUES DETERIORATE
"Try to find out what has happened to realty values around Times Square. You can't. Only the movie chains have improved the property. The Paramount Building was a $17,000,000 investment. Roxy's represented the expenditure of $1,000,000 more. Warner Bros. New Hollywood Theatre cost between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. What has Broadway done for these theatre owners who have poured their capital into it? Nothing. Not a thing.

"The owners of the old buildings around Broadway have done nothing to improve them. They demand the same old high rents, and in the meantime let their property deteriorate. Until this year, when the Lefcourt enterprises purchased the northwest corner of Forty-ninth Street and Broadway and began to build, no changes had been made in a decade that were not the result of moving picture capital. Marcus Loew started it with his State Theatre Building, R.K.O. is continuing it with its improvement of the old Columbia Theatre site.

"But how about the rest? The one and only new office building not connected with a theatre has been infested with the worst kind of gypsies ever since its opening. To-day many of its offices are empty. No business man who could help it would want an address in such a building.

"As for the street itself, it is infested with every kind of nuisance known to the human species. Ballyhoos to the right and left try to drag the passerby into so-called auction sales, into movie theatres, medicine shows, busses bound for Coney Island or the ball game. The police have given up trying to rid the pavement of the curbs. They have, however, around looking for jobs, selling anything that is loose.

MOVIE COMPANIES ONLY IMPROVE
"In my mind, the only progressive element around the Square is the moving picture theatre chain operators. The legitimate theatres have, in many instances, been allowed to deteriorate. A few of them are as well equipped as the picture palaces. . . . Yet, how many in the heat of summer, are cooled by ice plants. The legitimate theatre's fight to keep its footing against the pictures has been a battle of pygmies against Titans. And the pygmies have no weapons. The result has been a forgone conclusion, cheapness, decay.

"Another fault with the Square in recent years has been the lack of operation between the merchants of the district, the theatres and the police administration. Parking laws have hurt the merchants, the restaurants and the theatre. The Broadway Association has attacked the theatre's use of marquees and signs for advertising purposes, hamstringing them in their attempt to attract business.

"The result of every one pushing in a different direction has been the disappearance of the high class merchant and the gradual diminishing of the theatre business. Other thoroughfares have profited. Seventh Avenue, above 47th Street, has changed greatly in the last five or six years. Come any, the car barns gone the old firetrap, and in their places, newer and bigger movie theatres, hotels and department buildings.

The Broadway Association represents the merchants of Broadway, from the lower city to infinity, and John E. Gratzke is its head. Mr. Gratzke is apparently bewildered by the unruliness of Times Square, which, he confesses, gives him more trouble than any other part of the most famous thoroughfare in the world.

"It's becoming the Bowery all over again," says Mr. Gratzke. "I thoroughly agree with you when you say that the gradual disappearance of Broadway has become overrun with grafters, gypsies, auction sales, medicine shows and other pests. But I do not admit that its future is hopeless.

Mr. Gratzke pointed to Calvin Coolidge's initial newspaper column, in which the former President urged every one to have faith in America. Mr. Gratzke suggested that the world should have equal faith in Times Square. He admitted the difficulty, however, of translating this faith into works. The world, he believed, was not due to the hot weather. Well known merchants had moved to Fifth Avenue. It was true, Eighth Avenue, its cheaper property values and its new subway, would soon give old Broadway a new and powerful rival. But bad as conditions are, Mr. Gratzke believes that the "crossroads of the world" will survive.

"I have tried time and again to fight these new conditions," said Mr. Gratzke, "the newspapers have helped me occasionally. The Borough Administration has aided, in the person of Borough President Miller. The police have done their share. But it is a huge task to drive out the cheap element which has infested Times Square.

At the left is Frank Sheltz, the flying merchant prince's instructor. Field is planning a cruise over Europe soon in an air yacht with two co-pilots.

Plan Career as Movie Star for Evelyn Laye

By DAN THOMAS

United Artists Corporation is preparing to make Evelyn Laye, beautiful English musical comedy star, just as famous in the realm of movies as she has been heretofore on the music hall stage.

Miss Laye took New York by storm with her work in "Bitter Sweet." Now Samuel Goldwyn has signed her for a singing and talking picture, production which is just getting under way.

George Fitzmaurice has been signed to direct the film. He had just finished directing Ronald Colman's newest picture, "Raffles," and has a list of other big successes to his credit.

The story for Miss Laye's first movie is being written by Louis Bromfield and Sidney Howard, with the musical score coming from Herb Nacio Brown and Bruno Granichstaedten.

While the aviation picture, "Young Eagles," starring Buddy Rogers, was in preparation, Paramount's statisticians tried to find out what sort of lucky tallmans the daredevil stunt flier go for. They learned that of their four leading stunters, two carry luck pieces and two do not.

Dick Grace, most famous trick flier of them all, has a pair of English tweed waistcoats and a brown leather coat that he regards almost with reverence. He refuses to climb into a cockpit unless garbed in these clothes—and what he will do when they are worn out no one seems to know. Dick also carries a little silver medal, sent him by an English girl who admired his daring.

The medal was the last of six months going back to the sender three times before it reached him, and when Dick learned this he promptly adopted it as a lucky piece.

Frank Clark, another famous stunt flier, carries a tiny black pig carved from bog oak in Ireland, presented to him by friends as a charm to ward off evil spirits of the air. Thus far it has worked well—at any rate, Clark has never had to use his parachute.

On the other hand, Leo Nomis and Lieut. E. H. Robinson, who have given the public unnumbered aerial thrills, don't believe in charms of any sort. They just get into their planes and fly, trusting to their own skill to get them out alive.

Old-time fans of the silent movie days who can remember what a hit Rex Beach's book, "The Spoilers," made as a photoplay, ought to be interested to learn that the film is being remade as a talkie, under the direction of Edgwin Carewe. To give it the proper human atmosphere, George Bancroft has been signed for the leading role, and William Boyd, creator of the role of Sgt. Quirt in the stage version of "What Price Glory?" is to play the role of the "heavy" who is his rival.

"It is true that shops, restaurants and other business places on Broadway change hands frequently, but that is due to the type of merchants attracted to the Square. I know of one grill in the lower 50's which cost $100,000. I asked the owner how he expected to get his money back. 'I can't see the Square always crowded' he said. But he failed because he misjudged his potential clientele. Thus, with many others who have gambled and lost because they have overrated the spending power of visitors to the Square.

"Moreover, the night clubs have given the district a bad name. Ted Guinan with her 'Hello, sucker!' has said nothing. But they stay away and how many have been taken for a financial ride with bad booze and worse women down around the theatrical section. Most suckers don't boller. They say nothing. But they stay away and try to keep their friends away.

"Property values have not decreased in the Times Square district. It is true that the section between 34th and 42nd has been improved greatly since the end of the war. But remember that the twenty-five and thirty-story buildings you see below 42nd Street are lofty buildings and are part of the garment district. They add nothing to the retail merchandising value of the street. And there has been a general tendency on the part of the theatre to move up-town, ever since its beginning in New York.

"But I do not believe that the glamour and glitter of Times Square will ever pass away. It's not so long ago, twenty-five years only, since the Square was entirely given over to rooming houses, often frequented by an undesirable element. Few shops, shooting galleries, saloons and entertainment places of a like nature lined Broadway, and at the north end of the Square, where the Strand Theatre and the Winter Garden now stand, were carriage and harness factories. Indeed, the name Longacre Square, often used to characterize Times Square locally, is derived from the London square of that name where many carriage factories used to stand.

"I have faith in the future of the famous old district, despite the competing rivalries of the Rockefeller-Radio Centre and Eighth Avenue. It will always live as 'The Great White Way,' and its temporary difficulties will appear as the transient trouble which make life more strenuous and therefore more endurable. If Times Square's problems, like traffic, are a little complicated at this moment, only a good traffic officer is needed to solve them."

VICTORIA BAND WINS CONTEST

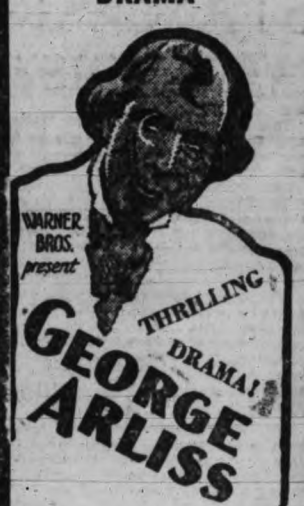

5th Coast Brigade Artillery Band Wins Cup in Vancouver Competition

The 5th Coast Brigade Artillery Band brought the Shelly Cup to Victoria for the first time when it won the competition for "B" bandmen held at the Canadian Pacific exhibition in Vancouver, Friday. Competing against five other bands from different parts of the province the local unit scored a well-merited win.

The Nainaimo Silver Cornet Band was second. Local music lovers who have heard the concerts of the 5th Coast Brigade Band will not experience surprise at their winning this signal honor. Two Vancouver Bands and one from Nanaimo, Kamloops and Qualicum competed against the local entry, which was under the direction of Charles Raine. The prize selection was Dan Godfrey's "New Sullivan Movement No. 2."

With the completion of a dam near Marathon, early next year, the Greek city of Athens will have its first adequate water supply, since it was founded in 1350 B.C.

FAMOUS MOTHER OF FAMOUS CHILDREN PLEADS AGAINST STANDARDIZATION OF YOUTH

By JULIA BLANSHARD

We must save our children from standardization if we are to save our soul!

That is the plea of Adrienne Morrison, famous mother of the three Bennett sisters, Constance, Barbara and Joan.

Miss Morrison herself is an actress of importance, having played in many well-known roles, including Shakespearean ones. She is of the seventh generation of actors in her family, and made her first stage appearance at the age of six months, in her father's arms.

"Modern children are the most pampered infants in the whole world," she said. "The universal desire on the part of parents to have their offspring successful in the money sense of the word, is standardizing the young to a deplorable extent."

DISEASE MACHINE INFLUENCE

Miss Morrison feels there are many ways to counteract the machine influence of the machine age in which we live. That is, of course, if parents are willing to seek them out. She expressed it:

"Teach children to use their leisure intelligently and beautifully and they will become individuals, each of whom will be interesting in his own particular way, and will make his own contribution to life's richness."

Her own experiment as manager and director of the Children's Players is an outcome of her belief that to-day's youngsters need food for their imagination, that they yearn for a sense of healthy adventure in their lives, and need clean romance and genuine glamour.

ACTORS ARE ADULTS

Miss Morrison has a company of professional adult actors who give the Adrienne Morrison, actress and mother of the famous Bennett sisters, believes children are being deprived of their chance to attain individuality.

kind of plays that all children yearn for. Miss Morrison is the best of the imaginative moderns, plays that meet the vivid imagination of the child and carry him far away into the lovely land of make-believe. They are calculated to stir his own imagination and satisfy his hunger for beauty and adventure.

"Americans are perhaps the most machine-minded folk in the world," Miss Morrison said. "Of course any people that has pioneered a way into greatness is apt to worship the tools that helped it. But because of this mental attitude, we measure our lives with a machine rule."

"The result? We set rules for this, that, and everything, and look askance with those who do not fall in line and follow. Of course we want our children to fit into the mold with precision and perfection. That is what is hard on the growing young!"

CHILDREN'S HERITAGE

"We stifle their individuality, kill the spirit of individual adventure, destroy their initiative and choke their imagination and desire for beauty by prescribing rules for everything. These qualities are the rightful heritage of every child. They should be fostered, not hurt."

"It is more than wrong to teach the child only how to make good in his work. Our country far more needs instruction in how to make good in leisure."

U.S. BISHOP PREACHES IN LONDON ABBEY

Rt. Rev. J. D. Perry Heard at Closing Service of Lambeth Conference

London, Aug. 11.—A United States Bishop, Rt. Rev. James Dewolf Perry, yesterday delivered the sermon at the closing of the Seventh Lambeth Conference of the Anglican Church in Westminster Abbey—the first time a prelate from the republic has been so honored in the history of the Lambeth meeting.

The conference opened July 5, and was attended by episcopal churchmen from all over the world.

Dr. Perry, who is Bishop of Rhode Island and Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, spoke on spiritual authority.

A colorful procession of archbishops and bishops marked the closing thanksgiving service. Led by the Archbishop of Canterbury, all the delegates gathered in the historic abbey cloisters

HISTORIC CHURCH SHAKEN BY TEMBLOR

Many of Italy's historic structures, masterpieces of architectural grandeur and some of which have stood for centuries, have been destroyed or damaged by that nation's most recent earthquake. Picture above is the great church of San Francisco de Paula, Naples, which was shaken by the latest temblor. It is near the royal palace and has been the scene of some of Europe's most brilliant royal weddings.

and marched into the abbey through the great west door. The gorgeous ecclesiastical robes of the archbishops and their train bearers, in ceremonial attendance, furnished an impressive close to the work of the conference.

In the farewell sermon, Bishop Perry said the church now was reaching a degree of unity greater than had been known for centuries.

"The impression made by our Lord's first public utterance was of finality," he said. "Before the words that had been spoken could be comprehended there was recognition of the voice which spoke as having authority, not as the scribe. Authority was a matter not unfamiliar to those he addressed."

"The credentials of the teacher, then, as always, were found in the sources of his doctrine, and the scribe of that and every age have been engaged in verifying the spoken word with chapter and verse. The world has its own treasure of authorities and its own judgment to pronounce on those who contravene them."

"The authority which the world will heed and finally accept is that which proceeds from unity. The supreme reason for the end of re-union to-day is the same as that which Christ named in his prayer—that they all may be one in order that the world may believe. The church is now reaching a degree of unity greater than has been known for centuries. When the spirit of unity is perfect, the voice of authority will be complete."

Flag-pole Sitter, Legs Useless, to Be Rescued To-night

Seattle, Aug. 11.—With no extension ladder long enough to reach him, Richard Blandy, world's champion flag-pole sitter and one of the central attractions at Playland, north of the city limits, is going to depend on a strictly northwest woods institution—a high climber—to get him down off his perch Monday night.

Parked on top of his pole since July 7, Blandy will exceed his own world's record of thirty-four days Sunday evening, and Monday night he is coming down—he has said so himself in most emphatic terms. The job of getting him down became a puzzle to Playland officials. For Blandy to climb down is out of the question, he says, since his legs became numb a week ago and now are entirely useless. The descent problem was solved last night, however, when Al Cretz, a Playland employee and former high climber in a logging camp, volunteered to don his climbing gear and either lower or carry Blandy to the ground.

For washing large windows a spray nozzle and squeegee have been combined.

ZIEGFELD AT LAKE LOUISE

Famous Broadway Show Producer, With His Wife and Party, Spend Day in Rockies

Banff Springs Hotel, Aug. 11.—What effects me most about Lake Louise is that I used a picture of it for the setting of one of my shows, and now I find that after choosing that setting for its beauty that it does not do this machineless scenery justice, and that the picture cannot be compared with the original. I have sent many telegrams to my friends telling them that they must not miss "coming here," so spoke Flo Ziegfeld as he stood yesterday morning at one of the windows of the Chateau Lake Louise. Later, he sat with Mrs. Ziegfeld, the former Billie Burke, on one of the lawn benches quietly drinking in the surrounding beauty. Mr. and Mrs. Ziegfeld with their daughter Patricia and the rest of their party arrived in their private car last Saturday night at Lake Louise, and yesterday morning visited the Chateau and lake. Mr. Ziegfeld stated that it was his first visit to the Canadian Rockies and that he and his party were having a wonderful time, and that next year they intend spending some weeks here. After luncheon they motored to the Banff Springs Hotel, driving slowly and stopping at every scenic point en route. Immediately after dinner they drove to their car which had been sent on from Lake Louise and continued their journey eastward.

Ex-Congressman In Jail Accused Of Rum Making

Baltimore, Aug. 9.—Manuel Herrick, former Oklahoma congressman, in jail after his arrest while working at a still as handy man at $15 a week, observed to-day that maybe he had made a mistake in not taking some of the money he said was offered him during his one term as a legislator.

"When I was in Congress," he said, "I had as much as $50,000 in bills stacked on my desk—dishonest money. But I told them to 'take it away.' Maybe I was a fool."

Federal officials went ahead with plans to prosecute Herrick on a charge of manufacturing liquor. In jail, in default of $1,500, Herrick faces the prospect of remaining there for several weeks until the grand jury acts.

SUN GLASSES FOR SEA BATHING

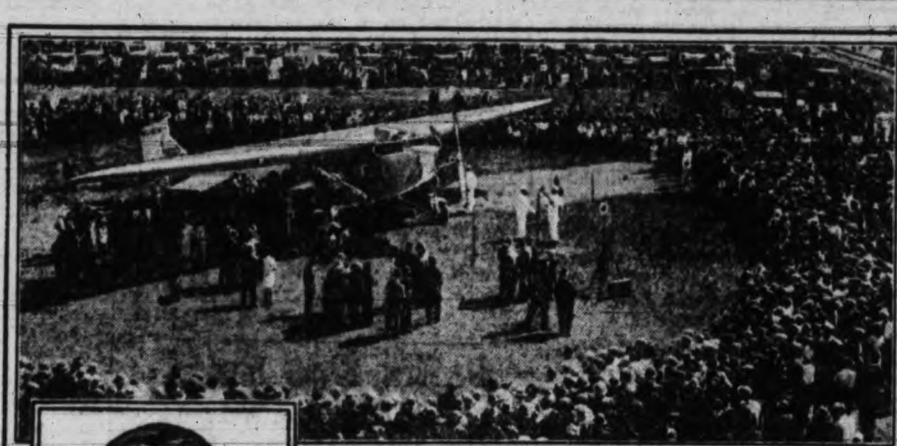

Sun-glasses fitted with canvas nose-shields are now being worn by sun and sea bathers at some of the fashionable French resorts. They are intended to prevent freckles and to stop the nose from peeling.

Men Win From Horses in Long Distance Race

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Men have superior endurance to horses over a long stretch of time, it was shown here yesterday when all the five human teams to finish in a twenty-six hour relay endurance race finished ahead of the six teams of horses entered.

The team of H. B. McNamara, of Brisbane, Australia, and Olie Wautanen, of Finland, won the race. They beat the horses by eleven miles and covered 211 1/2 miles in twenty-six hours.

Ford Executive Solves Problem of Travel Time With Airplane

Crowd Examining Ford Tri-Motor at Regina, the First Air Transport Seen in Many of the Western Provinces.

—Mr. Wallace R. Campbell, President, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

When the modern executive plans a hurried inspection trip to his branch factories and dealers he turns to the airplane for rapid transportation and quick jumps over long distances.

During the tour, Mr. Campbell had as his guests on plane flights Hon. J. D. McGregor, lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, and Hon. W. G. Egbert, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, the latter flying with the party from Edmonton to Calgary. Miss Edens Newlands, daughter of the lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan, flew with the party from Regina to North Battleford, piloting the big plane herself part of the way.

The first day's flight from East Windsor, Ontario, carried Mr. Campbell and his party via St. Paul to Winnipeg, a distance of 929 miles, in 8 hours, 45 minutes, much of the time against head winds. The same jump by train would have required 36 hours, or the total time consumed on the 3,700 mile flying survey trip.

found economic conditions improving, favorable prospects for a fair wheat crop and business men generally fighting vigorously to restore prosperity.

The route of the tour from Winnipeg was via Brandon and Virden to Regina; Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and North Battleford to Edmonton; thence to Calgary and through Medicine Hat, Moose Jaw, Minot, North Dakota, and St. Paul, back to East Windsor. Only once did weather conditions delay the party and that was when a violent dust storm raged over the prairies, forcing the plane back to Regina after it had fought its way against the storm and a 35-mile wind to a point 25 miles north of Moose Jaw, when all other planes, including the mail-planes, were grounded.

Mr. Campbell found the people of Western Canada very air-minded and actively supporting the development of some of the finest airports to be found in the Dominion. Crowds of 10,000 to 15,000 persons turned out in some of the larger cities to greet the party and view the Ford plane, the first tri-motor transport to be seen in those provinces outside of Winnipeg.

BILLIE DOVE STARRING IN ENGLISH PLAY

Capitol Showing Popular Actress in Leading Role in "A Notorious Affair"

Screen Story Is Adaptation From Widely-read English Novel "Fame"

"A Notorious Affair," the first National production starring Billie Dove, with a supporting cast which includes Basil Rathbone, Kay Francis, Montagu Love, Kenneth Thompson, opened to-day at the Capitol Theatre for a three day run.

It is adapted from the English play "Fame" and was directed by Lloyd Bacon, well-known first National director. It is the story of an English girl of wealth and good family used to luxury and care, who marries a temperamental musician.

The theme of the story is based on her struggle, first to make her husband known to the public, and then after that is accomplished, to hold his fickle affections.

Basil Rathbone is Paul Gherard, the genius husband, who is alternately weak and strong. Who is a genius but not strong enough to stand alone and fortune. Kay Francis plays a designing woman. Montagu Love portrays an adoring father. Kenneth Thompson is an old lover of Billie Dove who comes to her with aid and help at the time she needs him most.

Vancouver Woman Awarded Alpine Picture Trophy

Winnipeg, Aug. 11.—Mrs. Don Munday, Vancouver, captured the Challenge Cup for the best picture in classes A or B in the photographic competition held Saturday at Jasper National Park by the Alpine Club of Canada, now holding camp at Maligne Lake.

Mrs. Munday takes the special prize in Class A for the best picture of a mountain landscape, and also the special prize in Class B for the best picture of climbing, camping, animals or flowers.

BEAUTY CONTESTS RAPIDLY FALLING INTO A DECLINE

Public Loses Interest; Fiasco at Miami Show Is Blow to Industry

New York, Aug. 9.—It may have resulted from the fact that nearly every American woman who is under the age of seventy and has two legs, possesses, and wears on the slightest provocation, one of those fragmentary men have become surfeited with the sight of so many sunlit acres of femininity, or because, which would be more likely, the re-establishment of the long skirt has made street-corner gazing popular once more, and taken the kick out of the free and easy stare.

But I make my guess that racketeering, racketeering and the growing distaste on the part of the paying public to be a fall guy forever, are to blame for the current rapid decline in that historic institution, the beauty contest.

There was a time when you couldn't go to any seashore or swimming hole without encountering a platoon of self-conscious young ladies manning up and down in bathing suits when you didn't dare go to a movie for fear of having to gaze upon the so-called charms of "Miss Eighth Avenue" or "Miss 184th Street," and what tiny communities as Pinto City, Mont., and Kelso, Kan., took annual public inventory of their likely fillets.

Those were the days when a young woman with a nose, a reasonably good set of store teeth, and not more than one glass eye could be persuaded that all she had to do to drive Mary Pickford over the hill to the poorhouse was to send her photograph, return postage enclosed, to any of her favorite movie magazines, and when the most effective method of winning a girl's favor was to tell her she looked like Anita Stewart or, if she was under five feet eight, Marguerite Clark.

They are gone, those days, along with the old gentlemen who didn't think the automobile could enter anything more than a race. And the beauty contest is going.

It has become hard, you see, for beauty contest promoters to persuade young women who can read newspaper that their shows are on the level. It has become even more difficult to run such a contest without finding that at least half the contestants are "rings," professional beauties from the movie lots or the choruses.

FUBLIC LOSING INTEREST

Worst of all, it has become almost impossible to persuade the public to pay for the privilege of gazing upon a procession of moderately comely and totally uncelebrated young women just because they are dressed in skimpy bathing suits.

The Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce plans, it is true, to hold its long-established and widely-advertised Boardwalk Beauty Pageant again this year. But Galveston and Biloxi and Miami winter resorts all aren't going to repeat their unhappy experiments in trying to lure the sucker dollar into the community till by existing young women who are labeled "Miss Alabama" and "Miss Czechoslovakia" and "Miss Chillicothe," but register plain Minnie McGinnis before the cameras.

The flop of the Miami show, which was held in March, was the latest and most emphatic indication that the beauty contest racket is at an end. The committee in charge, the Miami International Beauty Pageant Association,

Ends Piles Quick

Without Saws or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that McFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores invite every file sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee money-back if it does not end all Pile misery. (Adv.)

tion, it called itself, imported forty-two luscious damascos from various parts of the United States and ten more from South America, advertised lavishly, got quite a few pictures in the rotogravure sections, and closed with a gross receipts nearer $10,000 (and not any too near, at that) than the $100,000 that had been counted on.

What receipts there were, were taken over by the City of Miami, which had loaned the association $10,000, but that was by no means the end of the "International Beauty Pageant." The Seaboard Air Line commented suit against the city for $6,724 railroad fares for transporting six of the contestants from Shamokin, Pa. (it was explained, hurriedly, that the girls had assembled at that point, but really did come from the States from which they were labeled as deriving); there were bills for board and lodging of the beauties totaling nearly $5,000 which someone had to pay; and there was about $20,000 more owing.

A Florida newspaper publisher, feeling perhaps that justice had not been done to "Miss Florida," dug up the fact that Janet Eastman, who had entered as "Miss Texas" and had won first prize and the title of "America's Sweetheart," was disqualified because she had been married and divorced, and that Alberta McKellop, who claimed to be "Miss California" and had taken second place, did not come from California, but was a defeated contestant in a preliminary contest in Oklahoma.

This brought the award to No. 3, who was Margaret Ekdal, of Tampa, Fla. which may have been balm for local patriotism, but which got Miss Ekdal practically nothing but her pictures in the papers, since Miss Eastman had been paid the prize money and had lamed for the California movie lots.

But Miami's scandals and misfortunes are not the first which have resulted from trying to sell the public beauty. The Atlantic City show of 1925—and though it has gone on annually, it has rather lost its publicity effect since then—was followed by charges that the "Miss America" title was awarded to Fay Lanphier, a movie actress, by prearrangement between the pageant committee and the Famous Players motion picture company, which filmed the show.

Those charges resulted in a number of libel suits, totaling $4,000,000, being brought by the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce and individuals concerned against the Macfadden publications, but as far as can be learned at this time none of them has ever been tried.

What has happened to these two "biggest" beauty shows has happened time and again in lesser contests. Some of those contests have been conducted in entire good faith, and have been won by unemployed chorus girls, professional models and movie extras. Others have been phony from the first publicity plug to the final vanishing of the promoter with the receipts of the prize money in his pocket.

One gang of beauty contests racketeers used to save themselves the necessity of ever disbursing the top prize money by carrying their own prize winner along with them.

Their field was the small cities—cities of from 50,000 to 300,000—and they sometimes persuaded a newspaper to back the show as a circulation stunt, but more often sold the idea to the chambers of commerce and the merchants' association.

They charged a high price for their services, took the rest of the receipts by fraud, and made a safe getaway by publicly awarding the prize to the beautiful blond young mannequin who had arrived in town only three weeks earlier, obtained employment at a beauty parlor and announced her intention of living in the town forever.

She was the wife of the gang's publicity dynamite.

Even the movie companies have pretty much abandoned the contests and competitions by which they formerly pretended, as a publicity ploy, that unrecognized dramatic ability and beauty might be recruited to the films.

ALASKA ROAD WOULD PROVE GREAT BOON

Bruce McKelvie Describes Cariboo Caravan Trip to Gyros

The proposed road connecting Alaska with the United States would prove a great boon to British Columbia and would prove a good investment," said Bruce McKelvie, before the members of the Gyro Club at its weekly luncheon in the Empress Hotel today.

Mr. McKelvie, who played an important part in the organization of the recent motor caravan through northern British Columbia, gave a vivid story of the wonders of the hinterland.

Mr. McKelvie stressed the potentialities of the province as a playground for the northwestern states. The surface of the tourist trade was barely scratched, he stated.

FINE HIGHWAY

The proposed Alaska highway was eagerly awaited in the United States and would give a direct highway between Mexico City to Nome.

WEST COAST FIRE BURNS LARGE AREA

Sixty-five Men Fighting Forest Blaze at Kirby Creek

Fire in windfalls and slashings at Kirby Creek, on the West Coast, had burned over an area of between 600 and 800 acres today, and was being fought by sixty-five men, according to reports reaching the forestry office here.

The firefighters were making headway against the flames last night, and it was presumed there was no immediate danger.

The fire was reported to have started in a logging area.

While the blaze near the city watershed at Sooke Lake was still burning, it was being brought under control. Late Saturday a dense column of smoke arose from this area, almost blotting out the afternoon sun from the city.

SAYS AVIATION BRINGS PERIL TO SHIPPING

Capt. C. D. Neroutsos Protests Seaplane Base on Inner Harbor

Warning that the waters of the Inner Harbor will become highly perilous to shipping, if used for aviation purposes, and advice that establishment of seaplane landings should be reconsidered before large investments in buildings were made, was given the directors of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon.

Capt. C. Neroutsos and Capt. J. W. Troup stated that the regulations governing air and water traffic are directly in conflict. Alderman Strath defended the arrangements made.

GOVERNMENT MAKES BIG SLASH IN LIQUOR PROFITS

Distribution to Municipalities for Christmas Trade Period Over One-third Below That of Last Year; Victoria Gets $34,798, Nearly One-fourth Less Than One Year Ago.

For the second successive half-year the Provincial Government has drastically reduced the distribution of liquor profits to the cities and municipalities of British Columbia, checks sent out over the week-end totaling $500,000 for the half-year ended March 31. The net amount earned by the Liquor Board has not been disclosed. For the same period last year the distribution was 35.6 higher, being $682,919, paid from profits announced at $1,956,090. Last December the Government distributed $500,000 from profits totaling $2,185,000.

The nature of the reduction in the apportionment to the municipalities is illustrated by the following comparisons for the three last semi-annual disbursements:

	Aug. 29	Dec. 23	Aug. 11
Vancouver	$250,523	$228,701	$215,431
Victoria	41,229	26,198	34,798
Saanich	15,519	11,483	12,431
Oak Bay	6,283	3,337	4,923

MISSING MAN IS LOCATED

James McNair, seventy, 2716 Scott Street, who had been missing since 11 o'clock yesterday morning, was found this morning on Dunedin Street, police announced.

A description of Mr. McNair was circulated by radio last night, following his reported disappearance. The aged man was taken home by police.

has always been much larger than the distribution made at the end of the year.

When announcing the distribution now made, Hon. W. C. Shelly made a forecast that the earnings for the current half-year, which will close on September 30, will be much below the average of recent years. This fact has no bearing on the reduced apportionment to municipalities now made, which is an effect of legislative amendments secured by the Government last spring, whereby the distribution to cities and municipalities was limited to $1,000,000 annually.

NARCOTIC SELLER IS SENT TO JAIL

Vancouver, Aug. 11.—Jack Pethick, charged with selling narcotics, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary with a fine of $500, or three additional months, by Magistrate H. C. Shaw, in the police court this morning.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.
Winnipeg, Aug. 11.—Wheat: Opened about unchanged this morning which was largely based on the strength in Liverpool with cables making it stronger than due. However, there was practically no export business over the week-end.

Weather conditions in the Canadian west were favorable with showers in western Manitoba and Saskatchewan while temperatures were quite cool and considerable rains or showers had been received over a large area of the corn belt, thereby relieving the drought situation for a time at least.

This lead to rather heavy selling of wheat right after the opening which was mostly liquidation with some short selling which found a poor demand. Prices broke 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 under Saturday's close, going up against the daily bids that brought in a little support, and with some buying later for eastern accounts the market was able to make a fair recovery from bottom levels.

Part of the pit crowd appeared to be quite friendly to the market. There was only a small cash wheat market passing with spreads unchanged. Buyers were in the market for most grades but were not keen, and holders were not pressing sales. Export sales over night and this morning were placed at 150,000 bushels.

The Canadian Government report due this afternoon will only give conditions of spring wheat. Russia was again reported to be offering wheat freely with some sales made to the continent. Feeling friendly to the market was shown by the fact that wheat on sharp dips but would sell on good upturns.

Courses: There was very little feature to these markets except that there appeared to be lots of barley and oats for sale at times and the demand was slow, with very little doing in the cash markets.

Flax: No feature. Liverpool due 3-4 to 7-8 higher based on Winnipeg.

The Dancing Floor

By JOHN BUCHAN

The sight of that fellow put an edge to my discomfort, and before the shadows had begun to fall I was roaming about the little room like a cat in a cage. The priest, left alone and presently I heard the ringing of a bell. In the quiet, now deepened by the hush of twilight, the homely sound seemed a mockery—like the tinkling of the bells of a naval battery I once heard on the Yzer. Then, in the midst of mud and death, it had inconspicuously suggested tea on the roof deck of a liner; now this tintinnulation, with its call to a meek worship, had the same grotesque note of parody. Clearly there were no worshippers. I went to the back of the cottage, and from the window of the bare little bedroom had a view of the church in that amethyst gloaming. It was a baroque edifice, probably five centuries old, but renovated during the last fifty years, and in part painted a violent red. Beside it was a tiny bell-tower, obviously far more ancient. I could see a faint light in the window, and beyond that a dark clump of flex above which the evening star was rising.

When the priest returned it was almost dark. He lit a lamp and carefully looked the door and shuttered the window. His barren service seemed to weigh heavily on him, for he moved wearily and did not raise his long-lidded eyes. It was borne in on me that at any price I must find some means of communicating with him, for my hour of action was approaching.

I tried him in French, but he never lifted his head. Then it occurred to me that even a priest of the Greek Church must know a little Latin. I used the English pronunciation, and though he did not understand me, he seemed to realize his tongue was talking, for he replied in a slow, broken Latin. I could not follow it, but at any rate he had found a common speech. I tore a page from my note-book and was about to write, when he snatched it and the pencil from my hand. There was something he badly wanted to say to me. He hesitated a good deal, and then in laborious capitals he wrote: "Al populus altius periculi tibi minatur, invenies refugium in ecclesia." Then he scored out "refugium" and wrote in "sanctuarium."

"Quid periculi?" I asked. "He looked at me helplessly, and spread out his hands. Danger, he seemed to suggest, lay in every quarter of the compass. We used up five pages in a conversation, in the doggiest kind of style. My Latin was chiefly the legal type, and I often used a word that puzzled him, while he also set me guessing with phrases which I suppose were ecclesiastical. But the result was that he repeated the instructions he had given me through Mark. If I was to enter the House, the only way was by the Dancing Floor—it took me some time to identify "locus saltatorum"—and to climb the great wall which separated it from the demesne. But it would be guarded, probably by the "incolae montium," and I must go warily, and not attempt it till the moon was down. Also I must be back before the first light of dawn.

I showed him my pistol, but he shook his head violently and went through a pantomime of warning, of which I was clear enough. I was not to shoot, because, though the guards were armed, there would be no shooting. But all the same I was in some deadly danger. He scribbled in abusive Latin that the people I had to fear were "pagani, nefasti, mysterium abominabilem cultores." If I were seen and pursued my only hope was to reach the church. Not his house—that was no use—but the church. Twice he printed in emphatic capitals: "Petite sanctuarium ecclesiae."

Then he took me into his little bedroom, and showed me the lie of the land. The moon was now up, the fog of the morning had gone out of the air, and the outline of the church and the bell-tower and the flex grove beyond might have been cut in amber and jet. Through the trees there appeared a faint reddish glow as if fires were burning. I asked what this might

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly's Prune Juice

(Copyright, 1930)

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Here, Wiggly, please feed this to the baby, will you?" Mrs. Longears held out a dish to her rabbit husband. She was in the kitchen of the hollow stump bungalow with Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzey, who was getting breakfast for the many little rabbit boys and girls who called Uncle Wiggly by the name of "Daddicus." "Feed what to which baby?" asked Uncle Wiggly, who had hopped out of bed ready to twinkle his pink nose and get ready for the day's adventure. "What to which baby, dear?" "Well, might the bunny gentleman ask this question, for there were so many little rabbits in the hollow stump bungalow that some of them had no names, as yet, but were given a number like the pages of a story book. Uncle Wiggly said if many more rabbits came to live with him he was afraid there would not be names enough for all the babies. They would have to go through life with nothing but a number."

"Give this to the baby in the high chair, and the porch," said Mrs. Longears, putting into her husband's paw a dish filled with something brown. "There's only one baby in a high chair on the porch, so you can't make a mistake. Went on the rabbit lady with a laugh."

Once she had told Uncle Wiggly to give a baby the bottle of milk, but as there were about ten little rabbit babies all taking the bottle, Mrs. Longears didn't know which one to feed, and he tried to divide one bottle of milk among ten little bunnies so that none of them had enough and they all cried and wouldn't have heard them. Ten little rabbit babies all crying at once! "My goodness! Don't you say so yourself!" I thought so. Uncle Wiggly could make no mistake for there was but one baby for him to feed.

"Taking the dish of brown stuff which his wife handed him, Uncle Wiggly went out on the porch where his baby rabbit was sitting in her high chair and he smiled at her and said: "Good morning, my dear! I am glad to see you. But I can't remember at this moment, what your name is. Perhaps you have a number."

No, this one has a name. She is Wopple," replied the baby, who was the older rabbit girl. "This is Baby Wopple, Daddicus."

"Glad to meet you, I'm sure," said Uncle Wiggly, who had just fed his own little baby bunny, "single ran in the bungalow to get some carrot oatmeal for breakfast before it should be all gone. "And I wonder what it is Mother has given me to feed you?" went on Mr. Longears. "What's this, my dear?" he asked Baby Wopple, holding the dish of grown stuff under her little pink nose.

"Goo!" murmured Baby Wopple. "Oh, this is goo, is it?" asked Uncle Wiggly, peering at the brown stuff in the dish. "Well, it looks like it, and I hope you like it. Sit up pretty, now, and take your goo."

"That isn't goo, Daddicus!" said Wiggly, who was a very good twin sister. "That's prune juice for the baby. 'Oh, prune juice? Very good!' spoke Mr. Longears. 'I thought it didn't look like goo. Well, now Wopple, sit up and take your prune juice. I'm sure it's good for you.'"

There was a tiny spoon in the dish and, filling it with the brown prune juice, Uncle Wiggly held it in front of Baby Wopple.

"Open your mouth!" said Uncle Wiggly, kindly. Wopple opened her mouth, but instead of taking in the prune juice she let out a sneeze and blew the juice from the spoon all over her Daddicus.

"Oh, Oh!" cried Uncle Wiggly, settling the dish down on the shelf on the high chair and taking out his handkerchief to wipe the prune juice off his pink, twinkling nose. "Something wrong here! But I know you didn't mean to do it, Wopple, so I'll forgive you. Now are you all through sneezing. If you are we'll start on the dish and the spoon, but when the sweet, brown juice was there. It was all gone!"

"My goodness, Wopple!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "What's this? Did you reach out and get the prune juice and eat it all yourself? I couldn't help it. But I'll get you more prune juice for Wopple." And when Teeter came out with another dish of prunes, Wopple ate it nicely.

And if the bread knife will cut a slice off the loaf cake for the gas stove's supper, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's rattle box.

"Oh, Teeter! Did you reach around and get Wopple's prune juice?" "Yes, Daddicus, I did," answered Teeter. "Well, so now I couldn't help it. But I'll get you more prune juice for Wopple." And when Teeter came out with another dish of prunes, Wopple ate it nicely.

Horoscope

TUESDAY, AUGUST 12, 1930

Astrologers read this as a day for routine affairs should be watched.

Early morning is subject to a sinister aspect making for inauspicious and irritable, the seers warn. Entrance to a quarrel should be avoided with special caution.

Under this planetary arrangement, accidents are believed to be more numerous, and for this reason unusual care in protection should be maintained.

Falls and drownings are pressed while this configuration continues, and a railway disaster seems to be forthcoming.

There is a sign of promise for those who earn money by means of writers. Reports on newspapers as well as authors should profit greatly.

Correspondents who follow radio or transatlantic news to emporiums of publication will set a modern record in achievement before the end of the year, the seers prophesy.

Events of world-transforming importance are pronounced within a small space of time, according to astrologers.

Changes in the map of Europe again will take place and progress in international understanding will be made, it is forecast.

The evening of this day is not altogether propitious for making new acquaintances of persons of opposite sex.

Return of poetic courtships and old-fashioned romances again is foretold, so the poets should have a period of good luck.

Changeable and unusual weather with a prolongation of the season of heat is forecast for the month.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the surety of a routine year in which they should be careful to avoid disputes.

Children born on this day probably will be inclined to intellectual pursuits as they grow into manhood and womanhood.

The subjects of this sign usually are cheerful, amusing and emotional.

Robert Southey, English poet, was born on this day, 1794, also Thomas Bewick, 1733, founder of modern wood-engraving.

Do You Ever Stop to Ask Yourself, Madam Wife, Whether the Treatment You Accord Your Husband, Now That You Are Married, Agrees With What You Led Him to Expect Before Marriage?

SUPPOSE, Madam Wife, you had treated your husband before marriage as you treat him now, do you think he would ever have popped the question to you? When you were trying to catch him you made yourself look as attractive as possible. You spent hours primping before he called, and you wouldn't have dreamed of letting him see you without your complexion on and your hair done just so, and you were always as dainty and fresh and crisp-looking as a French doll.

That was the kind of ravishing vision that he expected to gaze upon across the breakfast table. Do you think that he would ever have taken on your support if he had known that the woman he really would confront every morning would be a sloppy lady in a soiled house dress and down-at-heel slippers, who thought it too much trouble to fix herself up for a mere husband?

Before you were married you were so mild and amiable that butter wouldn't have melted in your mouth. You deferred sweetly to all of John's wishes and fell in with his plans, and he thought he was getting a regular yes-yeser for a wife.

Do you think he would have married you if you had had tantrums every time you were crossed and if you had even let him suspect that you had a temper concealed about your person that was liable to explode at any moment?

When you were fishing for your husband you baited your hook with flattery and you made him feel that whatever an unappreciative world might think about him, you considered him just about all right.

Do you think he would have married you if he had known that as soon as you got him home you would try to take him to pieces and make him all over again, and that you would criticize everything about him, from the cut of his hair to the kind of shoes that he wore and censor his manners and his morals and his grammar and his pronunciation?

Before you were married you listened to his conversation with bated breath and laughed at his jokes and encored his good stories and begged him to tell over again those fascinating reminiscences about when he was a small boy with green warts on his hands.

Do you think he would have married you if he had known that every time he started on a favorite anecdote you would say: "For heaven's sake, are you going to tell that old chestnut over again? I have heard it a million times, and when we go to the Jones's to dinner to-night, for pity's sake don't try to be funny."

Before you were married you were interested in your husband's hopes and ambitions and you would lend a willing ear while he discoursed about all the great things he was going to do, and you made him believe that you had faith in him and would be an inspiration to him.

Do you think he would have married you if he had known that you would yawn in his face every time he tried to talk to you about his business or career and that you would wet-blanket every plan by prophesying failure?

Before you were married you made your husband believe that he was your ideal and the one man you would have chosen if you had had the pick of the universe.

Do you think he would have married you if he had known that after marriage you would regard him as something that the cat brought in and that you would be continually contrasting him invidiously with other husbands and wondering why he couldn't make as much money as some other man did?

Before you were married you were a bright and cheerful companion with a peppy line of conversation.

Do you think your husband would have married you if he had known that you would degenerate into a whiner and complainer, who was always bemoaning her fate because she had to do housework and take care of babies and couldn't have in fine clothes and attend a house and as beautiful jewels as rich women have?

Before you were married you used to read and keep up with things and you were interesting and companionable.

Do you think your husband would have married you if he had known that after marriage your conversational repertoire would range only from the kitchen to the nursery and back again and over the back fence?

Before you were married you were a good chum and added to the pleasure of every occasion by your presence. You apparently enjoyed the show the young man took you to and the restaurant you went to afterward for a bite. You praised his new car and the way he drove it and made him think how nice it would be always to have you along with him.

Do you think he would have married you if he had known that after marriage you would be a spell-sport?

That every time he took you to the theatre you would want to know why he picked out that particular play and why he couldn't have got better seats and that in the midst of the most heartrending passage you would demand to know if he had put out the cat?

That you would ruin every dinner by looking at the prices on the menu, and that you would drive him almost to committing murder every time you went riding by your back-seat chauffeur?

Before you were married you showed your husband appreciation. You made much of his gifts and attentions and let him see that you considered him the most generous and thoughtful man in the world and that you were lucky to have got him.

Do you think that he would have married you if he had known that after marriage you would take all of his labor and self-sacrifice as no more than your due and without so much as a "thank you"?

Before marriage you were never weary of telling your husband how much you loved him.

Do you think that he would have married you if he had known that after the first baby came his nose would be put permanently out of joint and that he would exist thereafter not as a man, nor a lover, nor a husband, but merely as the children's father?

Don't you think that many a man who looks at the wife he has got and the sweetheart he had feels that the goods doesn't come up to the sample?

TAX IS PLACED ON EMPLOYED TO RELIEVE IDLE

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Final returns for the 1929-30 wheat harvest in New South Wales show that 33,848,000 bushels were supplied from the crop, according to a report received by the Department of Trade and Commerce. There was an average yield at 8.7 bushels per acre, and the crop was 9.5 per cent below the estimate, but thirty per cent below the average yield of the preceding ten years.

An act has been passed in New South Wales having for its object the relief of unemployment. It is to be in operation as from July 1 for a period of twelve months. All person receiving over $375 per annum will be liable for the payment of the tax at the rate of sixty cents on every $100. It is estimated that the yield from this tax will be $15,000,000 for the year. The fund will be administered by a special board.

Russia Is to Have Anti-church College

Moscow, Aug. 11.—The All-Union Society of Militant Atheists yesterday decided to establish a central anti-religious university in Moscow with facilities for 400 students. Anti-religious professional chairs will also be created in existing universities in Russia.

The society further plans the opening of seven other anti-religious schools in various parts of Moscow province. More than 250 anti-religious circles in Moscow at present are busily engaged instructing workers on atheistic subjects.

Galveston, Texas, Aug. 11.—The first full cargo of wheat to be shipped from here to Brazil in four years was taken out yesterday by the Swedish steamship Bolivia. The Bolivia carried 209,440 bushels of high quality wheat. Brazil ordinarily is largely supplied with grain by Argentina, but the crop in Argentina has been of poor quality this year and the wheat is being imported from the United States for mixing.
